Life Writing Meg Jensen, Jane Jordan, 2009-03-26 In our age self publishing self broadcasting and telling stories about our own lives and the lives of others are all pervasive This is also the age of the witness the age of testimony in which first hand accounts personal experience life change and evolution are valued for good or ill over distanced reflection What are we to make of all this telling of lives The essays collected in Life Writing The Spirit of the Age and the State of the Art from writers and academics associated with the Centre for Life Narrative Studies at Kingston University in London begin to address this very question and in doing so demonstrate the fluidity and diversity of life writing itself The remit of the Centre for Life Narratives is to rise to the challenge poised to writers teachers and researchers alike by this very fluidity and diversity in our discipline and is exemplified here with contributions from academics curators editors and biographers including Neal Ascherson Victoria Glendinning Professor Kathryn Hughes Hanif Kureishi Blake Morrison and Lawrence Goldman editor of the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography This collection of essays from CLN offers the reader our founding contribution to the debates that surround this era defining genre and as such presents both the state of the art and the spirit of our age

Emotional Structure, Creating the Story Beneath the Plot Peter Dunne, 2007 The leap from concept to final draft is great and the task is filled with hard work and horrors It is here that most writers struggle to get the plot right at the expense of the story's real power The result is a script that is logical in every way yet unmoving Emotional Structure by Emmy and Peabody Award winning producer writer and teacher Peter Dunne is for these times when the plot fits nicely into place like pieces in a puzzle yet an elemental terribly important something remains missing The missing piece won't be found by adding action you can't stir the soul with a car chase And the problem won't be helped by a change of location the only location that matters is deep in your protagonist The solution is to pay constant attention to the inseparable nature of plot development and emotional development When you create any scene whether it's a police pursuit on the interstate or a heart to heart in the kitchen the emotional reasoning behind the scene has to be evident When you develop the emotional current that sustains the action you create a scene with heart and soul and you and your viewers are going to feel the passion

Children 1750-1900 Charlotte Appel, Nina Christensen, M.O. Grenby, 2023-08-15 This is the first study to take a comprehensive look at transnational children's literature in the period before 1900. The chapters examine what we mean by children's literature in this period as well as what we mean by transnational in the context of children's culture. They investigate who transmitted children's books across borders: authors, illustrators, translators, publishers, teachers, relatives, readers. Through what networks the books were spread: commercial, religious, colonial, public, familial, and how the new local identities of imported texts were negotiated. They ask which kinds of books were the most mobile and they consider what happens to texts when they migrate as well as what effects transnational dissemination had on individual readers and on societies and cultures more broadly. Geographically the case studies gathered here range right across Europe from Dublin to St. Petersburg then onto North America, India, and China. They extend widely across the many genres and formats of children's reading from cheap print such as almanacs and ABCs to fairy tales and fables, children's novels, textbooks, and beautifully illustrated gift books.

Create Your School Library Writing Center Timothy Horan, 2016-10-16 Colleges typically have writing centers to which students can bring their writing assignments to a peer tutor for assistance, but most high schools and middle schools do not. This book advocates for the creation of writing centers in K-12 schools and explains why the school library is the best place for the writing center. There is a glaring absence of writing centers in today's K-12 schools. More and more students are being asked in college entrance testing to submit samples of their writing, and employers are expecting their workers to write correctly and clearly. This book addresses the critical lack of writing centers below the undergraduate level. It demonstrates how middle school and high school librarians can create writing centers in their school libraries, explains how to assist students through a one-on-one writing tutorial method, and gives students and teachers the tools for learning and understanding the complex art of writing. Author Timothy Horan, inventor of the School Library Writing Center, establishes why school libraries represent the best and most logical places to create writing centers and why school librarians are the natural choice to direct writing center operations. He then takes readers through the process of creating a writing center from original conception up through opening day. Additional topics covered include how to publicize and grow your School Library Writing Center, maintaining your writing center for efficient operation on a daily basis as well as for years to come, how to become an effective writing center director and writing tutor, the most current technology that can be used to assist in the writing composition and research process, and working with English language learner (ELL) students within your writing center.
