Abrolhos Islands Conversations:

Abrolhos Islands Conversations Alison Louise Wright, Trevor Mitchell, 1998 Seventy kilometres off Australia's west coast lie a series of barren looking atolls called the Abrolhos Islands. The seasonal inhabitants of these islands came from diverse ethnic backgrounds and like many isolated communities have developed close links. Working together as a community they have built schools, halls, churches and lifelong friendships. Working together in the crayfishing industry they have faced hardships and tragedy. Yet when they step onto their boats to go crayfishing as one fisherman put it, it's dog cat dog and a spirit of intense competition reigns. In a series of interviews, portraits and drawings, Abrolhos Islands Conversations charts the changes, the characters, the laughter, the pain and the tall tales of the Islands through the eyes of the fisherman and their families. 'Just a Fisherman's Wife' Jane Dowling, 2011-05-25 This book provides a unique exposé of women in family businesses in the Australian commercial fishing industry and explores their visibility, contributions, barriers and opportunities for participation and knowledge. Recognising the need to move beyond an exploration of women's roles, this book applies a detailed, well-articulated and sophisticated feminist post-structural approach which explores women's identity, power, knowledge and positioning in relation to the current industry climate in the context of discourses of crisis and sustainability. This is particularly pertinent with climate change looming as the next industry crisis. As such, this book has significant interdisciplinary appeal and will benefit feminist, gender, natural resource management and fisheries scholars and policy makers. Ultimately, it is hoped that this book will have a substantial impact on industry women in both Australia and elsewhere and reduce their marginalisation, increase awareness about their contributions and result in greater opportunities to voice their unique knowledge on social issues with a view to enhancing industry sustainability. The Marine Flora and Fauna of the Houtman Abrolhos Islands, Western Australia Fred E.
