Absent And Accounted For

Great Britain: National Audit Office, Sir John Bourn

Absent And Accounted For:

The management of staff sickness absence in the Department for Transport and its agencies Great Britain: National Audit Office, 2007-06-08 Ministers have challenged all Departments to reduce their 2004 sickness rates by 30% by 2010 This report looks at the sickness levels in the Department of Transport and its seven executive agencies which average 10.4 days sickness for each full time employee compared to a Civil Service average of 9.8 days However the performance is varied The central Department and four agencies have sickness levels at or below comparable organisations but three agencies have higher levels and the Driving Standards Agency and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency have absence rates of 13.1 and 14 day respectively If there is going to be a significant change there needs to be action at the corporate and individual business level Corporately there needs to be targets for each part of the Department tailored to circumstances quality standards for recording sickness with the provision of management information a consistent framework for evaluating initiatives and sharing good practice At a business level more could be done to ensure that line managers were aware of their responsibilities and improve intervention in long term cases Absence and Nothing Stephen Mumford, 2021 This book argues that nothing is not and explains how we can meaningfully speak about what is not Absence from Work, Measuring the Hours Lost, May 1973-76 Janice Neipert Hedges, 1978 From Absence to Attendance Alastair Evans, Mike Walters, 2002 For anyone keen to slash their absence figures and build a strong attendance culture this book provides a starting point In this revision the authors provide practical advice and guidance Absent Workers and Lost Hours, May 1978 Daniel E. Taylor, 1980 Hearings and Reports of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the House of Representatives, ... 62d Congress, 1st Session, 1911 The management of staff sickness absence in the Department for Transport and its agencies Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2007-11-20 The Department of Transport and its seven executive agencies average 10.4 days of sickness for each full time employee compared to a Civil Service average of 9.8 days However the performance is varied The central Department and four agencies have sickness levels at or below comparable organisations but the Driving Standards Agency and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency have absence rates of 13.1 and 14 day respectively On the basis of a Comptroller and Auditor General's report the Committee have examined current sickness levels in the Department and actions being taken to meet their 2010 targets They conclude that the Agencies need a better understanding of why some staff take so much sick leave Although there appears to be a correlation with low paid repetitive administrative jobs there are also concerns about leadership within the Department Measures have therefore been taken to strengthen management in areas involving repetitive work Decisions of the Comptroller General of the United States United States.
