Ofahengaue Vakalahi, Wilma Peebles-Wilkins, 2009-11-12 Social workers have long fought to bring diversity inclusiveness and economic justice to the communities in which they serve but for decades the internal practices of the profession have contradicted its public persona perpetuating myths and misconceptions about women of color and their ability to teach and lead In these essays African American Asian American Latina Pacific Islander and Native American women share their experiences working within the field of social work describing their rise to leadership and their efforts to maintain authority Emphasizing themes of social change and justice these narratives make visible the unique challenges faced by leaders and administrators of color an issue that continues to affect women within the field today Trading on decades of experience

Halaevalu F O Vakalahi and Wilma Peebles Wilkins choose essays that specifically examine concerns and techniques facilitating the development of women of color as leaders Their lessons inform future research policy and practice and are sure to enhance scholarship on diversity within the profession There is even a chapter written by a university vice president who focuses entirely on working within the academy Altogether these contributors prove that culturally based paradigms of leadership historically devalued and suppressed are crucial to women on the rise Quality Cancer Care Peter
