There is a need for administrators in education to institute policies that will support diversity and inclusion within special education classrooms. Rethinking Inclusion and Transformation in Special Education explores the latest findings on how children learn by discussing global policies and educational practices considering professional expectations, establishing parent relationships that enhance communication, creating an effective learning environment that meets all students' needs and using technology wisely. Covering topics such as language development, promotion, school leadership practices and long-term skill support, this book is essential for special education teachers, diversity officers, school administrators, instructional designers, curriculum developers, academicians, researchers and upper-level students.

Physical Education in the Early Years Pauline Wetton, 2013-10-31 This book begins with an overview of the first months of a child's life with an indication of the major movement milestones which all children should reach before they enter the pre-school phase. The rest of the book gives information about developing children's physical skills in dance, games and gymnastics throughout the pre-school and infant school phase. It also addresses many of the contemporary issues surrounding the delivery of the PE curriculum in schools, including the assessment of pupils' performance. This book will help students, teachers and curriculum leaders deliver a sound PE education to children aged 3-7 and will also prove useful to all those involved in early years education. Pauline Wetton is currently a lecturer in education and an assistant director of sport at the University of Durham. The Teaching and Learning in the First Three Years at School series is edited by Joy Palmer.
