Instructional Models in Reading Steven A. Stahl, David A. Hayes, 2013-04-03 This book started with a simple idea examine models of reading instruction that have emerged during the past 20 years These models span a wide range of instruction representing a continuum from highly structured task analytic instruction to child centered and holistic instruction Each model has its own epistemology or views on how reading and instruction are to be defined The different epistemologies indicate different principles of instruction which in turn indicate different practices in the classroom Each model is also supported by a different research base In this volume leading proponents of these different models discuss their ideas about reading instruction thereby encouraging readers to make their own comparisons and contrasts The chapter authors seem to adopt the editors eclectic approach to some greater or lesser extent incorporating aspects of other models into their instruction as they see other goals Thus models of reading instruction are complex Complicating matters further is the fact that teachers hold their own models of reading which may or may not be congruent with those discussed here Although academically developed models influence college preservice and in service instruction teachers own models of reading filter the information that they take from what they learn from these perspectives By carefully examining these variables this book makes a firm contribution toward disciplined inquiry into what it means to teach reading

Brown, Rafael

Lara-Aiecio, Dr. Shirley A. Jackson, 2013-03-01 Although educational theories are presented in a variety of textbooks and in some discipline specific handbooks and encyclopedias no publication exists which serves as a comprehensive consolidated collection of the most influential and most frequently quoted and consulted theories There is a need to put such theories into a single easily accessible volume A unique feature of the Handbook is the way in which it conveys the theories The organization of the chapters within each section makes the volume an easy to use and understandable reference tool as researchers and practitioners seek theories to guide their research and practice and as they develop theoretical frameworks In addition to the traditional theories presented the Handbook includes emerging theories for the 21st Century as well as presenting practical examples of the use of these theories in research from dissertations and published articles An appendix which indicates which theories have instruments associated with them and where those instruments can be found is also included The Handbook consists of 12 sections Section I provides the introduction with a focus on what constitutes good theory as well as how theory guides research and practice The remaining sections address Philosophical Educational Constructs Learning Theory Instructional Theory Curriculum theory Literacy and Language Acquisition Theory Counseling Theory Moral Development Theory Classroom Management Theory Assessment Theory Organizational Theory and Leadership Management Theory Each section consists of an overview written by the section editor of the general theoretical concepts to be addressed by the chapter authors Each chapter within the section will include a a description of the theory with goals assumptions and aspects particular to the theory b the original development of and interactions of the theory c validation of the theory d generalizability of the theory across cultures ethnicities and genders e the use and application of
