Boy At The Window:

The Boy at the Window John Brandon, 2005-07 In The Boy at the Window Scott Morgan and Vallie Taylor are two young gay men who decide they want nothing more than to adopt a child. They contact Happy Home Adoption Services in Albuquerque, New Mexico, to find out what their chances might be to adopt. They are investigated, finding out they do qualify. Prepared to adopt a newborn or toddler of any race, they find a fourteen-year-old gay teenager. Nicholas desperately needs a home. They take the time to get to know him and decide to make him their new son. Nicholas is elusive, never smiling, and does not make eye contact, but he agrees to be adopted. Nicholas starts high school and begins having trouble with a bully. Scott, Vallie, and the rest of their family do what they can to help. Nicholas goes through a frightening experience which helps him finally realize what a real family is and how much his new family really loves him.

Boy on the Wire Alastair Bruce, 2015-08-13 He is a man who lied, who told a story, a wild fanciful story about the death of a child, a hard and unyielding story. It is that he finds that he hates most. The story that was told. In 1983 Paul Hyde, aged ten, dies falling from a ledge in the mountains of the Karoo. His older brother Peter, who falls at the same time, survives but loses all memory of the event. The youngest brother John is the only witness. Many years later John is living in London. He and his wife Rachel, who knows nothing of the tragedy of his past and nothing of his family, make plans to have children of their own. Their life together is disrupted when Peter arrives in London and claims his memory is returning. Pulled back in spite of himself, John returns to South Africa and the home he grew up in. His return makes him question his recollection of the tragedy. Can we ever be certain of events that happened that far in the past? Certain we have not completely changed their meaning and our part in them.
