Aging Family New Visions In Theory Practice And Reality:

The Aging Family Terry Hargrave, Suzanne Midori Hanna, 2013-06-17 As the population of the United States ages and the lifespan increases so does the number of living generations The mental health care delivery system therefore faces new challenges The United States is heading into the 21st century with multigenerational families now commonplace with up to four or five generations co existing at the same time And each generation is forced to deal with its own developmental transitions as well as complex cross generational issues When a therapist steps into this situation his or her role has to take on board the complexity of the whole family system This text highlights the issues that hold families together and often tear them apart It offers core perspectives that seek to make the work of intervention easier and more effective for the clinician Whether the therapist is called upon to intervene on behalf of elder members to deal with issues such as depression or to step in when younger members are trying to determine how best to provide eldercare the perspectives presented in The Aging Family aim to enrich the strategies used The Aging Family Terry D. Hargrave, Suzanne Midori Hanna, 1997
