AIDS and Aid Diana Sonntag, 2010-03-17 The unfolding tragedy of the AIDS epidemic is an instance where a disease with local origins has created consequences worldwide Todd Sandler 2001a Health concerns are rmly embedded in the developing world Conditions of poverty like inadequate health infrastructures and sanitation limited access to treatment of diseases etc have increased the susceptibility to diseases However there is an increasing awareness that health problems of the poor cross national borders and hence affect the well being of people globally Of all the health crises originating from the developing world the HIV AIDS epidemic does not only seem to be the largest humanitarian concern but also possesses major economic de graphical and social consequences AIDS could cause even bigger consequences in the future if the spread of HIV is not stopped The international community has recognised this necessity by determining the 1 ght against AIDS as one of the eight Millennium Development Goals MDGs

HIV/AIDS and human development in sub-Saharan Africa Tanja R. Müller,2023-08-28 This third part of the AWLAE series on HIV AIDS and agriculture in sub Saharan Africa focuses on the epidemic as a challenge to human development in general and rural development in particular In the face of the impact of the epidemic as described in parts one and two of the series the agricultural sector can play an important role in mitigating some of its effects Strategies for agricultural intervention are of particular importance in sub Saharan Africa given the fact that most of the countries hardest hit by the epidemic are heavily reliant on agriculture Different agricultural sector based mitigation strategies are discussed It is further argued however that such interventions need to be complemented by interventions from the health and other sectors in particular by treatment regimes including access to anti retroviral drugs The text is followed by an annotated bibliography
