Active and Healthy Aging and Quality of Life: Interventions and Outlook for the Future, volume II Shekhar Chauhan, Petra Heidler, David Jean Simon, 2024-09-10 The continuous growth of older populations as a consequence of demographic changes is a huge global challenge. The growing proportion of older adults not only burdens the healthcare system specifically in developing countries but also posits a challenge at the household level specifically in nuclear and one person households. For societies as a whole to avoid costly and negative effects, it is crucial to increase their knowledge of how to promote good health among older adults so that they can live longer and enjoy a better quality of life. Active aging is the process of optimizing opportunities for health participation and security in order to enhance quality of life as people age. An active and healthy life has remained one of the most important aspirations for all people, both young and older adults alike. This ambition has become a genuine possibility for many due to a rising life expectancy among people of diverse attributes across the world. While celebrating longer life and more financial security in later life than ever before, we need to challenge how these aspirations can be sustained through our own behavioral responses and through public policy, institutional reforms and innovations. The challenge is to identify, recommend and promote strategies and interventions that stimulate and sustain the activity, independence and health of people of all ages, especially older adults, and in the process promote the well-being and quality of life of people and make public welfare systems more sustainable.

Quality of Life Improvement: Smart Approaches for the Working and Aging Populations Sabina Baraković, Zahid Akhtar, Jasmina Barakovic Husic, 2024-03-19

Quality of life QoL is a broad concept that has many definitions and meanings depending on the context under consideration It can be perceived as the overall enjoyment of life and a multidimensional concept which emphasizes the self perceptions of an individual's current state of mind which is affected in a complex way by the person's physical health, psychological state, personal beliefs, social relationships and their relationship to salient features of their environment. On the other hand, demographic data suggests an increased need for workers worldwide and a rapid aging trend in the active workforce as well as in general. This trend of workforce deficit and population aging will be even more prominent in the future. Therefore, in order to have and sustain a healthy, motivated and productive workforce but also healthy independent and active elderly adults, one must improve their QoL and vice versa. Improving QoL will improve general public health and in turn create communities who can contribute in diverse and positive ways to both promote and sustain health for future generations.

Quality of Life and Person-Centered Care for Older People Thomas Boggatz, 2019-11-15. This book explores the meaning of quality of life in care for older persons and introduces the reader to their main concerns when receiving care. Based on qualitative research, it pays particular attention to the needs and requirements of older people considering their individual family situations, social circumstances, values and lifestyles. Person-centred care is a way of providing nursing care that puts older people and their families at the core of all decisions, seeing each person as an individual and working together to develop appropriate solutions. Following an introduction to the concept of quality of life in old age, the book reviews essential findings from worldwide research into the experiences of older people with regard to nursing care and the impact of these experiences on their quality of life. It investigates health promotion care provided in nursing homes and assisted living facilities and palliative care. Each chapter includes a brief introduction to the respective field of nursing care and the problems it has to deal with, concluding with a discussion of their implications for nursing practice in the respective field of care. In closing, the evidence from qualitative research is discussed in relation to current gerontological theories.

Nutrition and Quality of Life in the Elderly Daniela Caetano Gonçalves, Gabriela Salim de Castro, 2024-06-12. The WHO estimates that by 2050, 30% of the world's population will be elderly. The increased life expectancy of the population coupled with falling fertility contributes to this scenario in many countries. Although the life expectancy of the population has increased, the recurring concern is to ensure the quality of life of this group. Some diseases are directly associated with the aging process, such as sarcopenia and osteoporosis. On the other hand, chronic degenerative diseases such as diabetes, hypertension and cancer are associated with long-term inadequate health habits and therefore are more prevalent in the elderly. Among the factors that contribute to a lifestyle that influences the onset of these diseases, we can highlight sedentarism and poor diet quality.
