Agricultural Transformation Social:

Agricultural Transformation and Social Change in Africa Bernhard Nett, Volker Wulf, Abdramane Diarra, 1992 The book includes presentations made to the Inter University Center's IUC conference on Agricultural Transformation in Africa during the 1990s Present Performance and Future Trends June 1991 in Dubrovnik With agriculture becoming a major issue of development studies the contributors tried to develop a comprehensive and interdisciplinary approach to analyse trends causes and the development potential of structural changes and agricultural transformation policies in Africa

Agricultural Transformation in a Global History Perspective Ellen Hillbom, Patrick Svensson, 2013-03-05 History teaches us that agricultural growth and development is necessary for achieving overall better living conditions in all societies Although this process may seem homogenous when looked at from the outside it is full of diversity within This book captures this diversity by presenting eleven independent case studies ranging over time and space By comparing outcomes attempts are made to draw general conclusion and lessons about the agricultural transformation process

Agricultural transformation in Asia Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2021-06-11 Over the past few decades some countries in Asia have been more successful than others in addressing poverty and malnutrition The key question is what policies strategies legislation and institutional arrangements have led to a transformed agricultural sector effectively contributing to poverty alleviation and addressing malnutrition The great majority of national policymakers within and outside the Asia Pacific region are keen to understand the causes of agricultural development and transformation in successful countries in Asia A large number of studies have been conducted and some of them link specific public policies and interventions to successful agricultural transformation However there seems to be lack of focus on the policy legislative and institutional environments that have enabled or impeded agricultural transformation in Asia National policymakers are likely to benefit significantly from adequate and convincing information on successful and relevant experiences in successful transformation Countries are interested in what their neighbours and peers have done and why some have achieved impressive results The main purpose of this study is to take stock of public sector experiences in facilitating and enabling agricultural transformation in selected countries in Asia The study focuses on key public sector interventions in particular policies legislation and institutional innovations because these areas have so far not been adequately researched

Agricultural Transformation in Nepal Ganesh Thapa, Anjani Kumar, P.K. Joshi, 2019-11-25 This book addresses some key strategic questions related to agriculture in the context of major contemporary developments and emerging challenges in Nepal such as the changing role of agriculture with economic growth structural transformation in reducing poverty improving nutritional outcomes and addressing the challenges of climate change The book also suggests policy measures to improve the delivery of critical inputs and services and ensure the participation of marginal and smallholders in high value chains Further it discusses how the new federal system and governance structure will affect the delivery of agricultural technology and services The book is divided into five parts Part I discusses macro issues in the agriculture sector while Part II focuses on agricultural productivity growth and its main drivers The third part explores diversification in the agricultural and non agricultural sectors by farmers and other rural people for livelihood improvement while the fourth part deals with agricultural trade and marketing issues highlighting policy implications and recommendations in the areas of immediate focus and further research Lastly Part V addresses institutions and governance issues which are vital for agricultural development In the final chapter the editors summarize and synthesize the book s main findings and develop a policy agenda for addressing the many challenges faced by the agriculture sector in Nepal so as to make it more productive competitive sustainable and inclusive The book offers a rich source of analytical information on various aspects of agricultural development in Nepal and will be of immense value to policymakers development partners civil society students and those interested in the economic and agricultural development of not only Nepal but also other developing countries

Agricultural Transformation in Africa Gbadebo O. A. Odularu, 2023-01-01 This book offers new insights into the ongoing agricultural transformation in Africa Presenting case studies macro level simulations and relevant surveys it analyzes food crops and agri food policy challenges and their implications in various African countries In addition it discusses how current African agri food policies could be improved to achieve the continental vision of sustainable development in light of the African Union s Agenda 2063 The respective contributions address topics such as drivers of technical efficiency among smallholder maize farmers farm management practices agri food infrastructure policies food security agricultural growth and financing for and investment in agricultural production Accordingly the book appeals to scholars of economics and agricultural studies and to anyone interested in the agricultural transformation of Africa An ecosystemic framework for analysing evidence-informed policy systems for agricultural transformation Thoto, F., Mas Aparisi, A., Derlagen, C., 2023-02-28 The production and use of evidence for agricultural policy is critical to prioritizing and targeting effective agricultural transformation reforms in African countries International development organizations have supported programmes that promote evidence informed policies however this support has often been focused on short term and externally driven solutions with limited impact in the long run Faced with this scenario there is now a growing interest in the role of resilient and sustainable national systems that can generate organic evidence informed agricultural policy Yet there is limited knowledge on how to map out and analyse such systems which is critical to fostering their emergence and the later uptake of evidence in policymaking This study draws on ecological science and social network analysis to develop and test a framework that can help understand evidence policy systems and their potential to sustainably promote evidence informed policymaking in the agricultural sector Applying this framework in Benin the study found that beyond the Ministry of Agriculture other organizations produce broker or use evidence such as data research evaluation and expert knowledge in a context that is influenced by the institutional rules and setup the incentives in place and the funding landscape Furthermore the paper analyses the sustainability of the evidence policy system in Benin through its power resilience and capability Finally it provides policy recommendations with the key entry points to improve on and how a system like this can be used to improve agricultural policymaking

Success in Agricultural Transformation Isabelle Tsakok, 2011-08-01 To lift and keep millions out of poverty requires that smallholder agriculture be productive and profitable in the developing world Do we know how to make this happen Researchers and practitioners still debate how best to do so The prevailing methodology which claims causality from measures of statistical significance is inductive and yields contradictory results In this book instead of correlations Isabelle Tsakok looks for patterns common to cases of successful agricultural transformation and then tests them against other cases She proposes a hypothesis that five sets of conditions are necessary to achieve success She concludes that government investment in and delivery of public goods and services sustained over decades is essential to maintaining these conditions and thus successfully transform poverty ridden agricultures No amount of foreign aid can substitute for such sustained government commitment The single most important threat to such government commitment is subservience to the rich and powerful minority

Political Settlements and Agricultural Transformation in Africa Martin Atela, Abdul Raufu Mustapha, 2022-12-30 This book explores the ways in which political settlements can contribute to positive changes in Africa's agricultural and manufacturing sectors Contemporary Africa has seen many governments donors and commercial private enterprises supporting innovative agricultural and agroprocessing schemes with the purpose of diversifying economies However many of the schemes collapse or at best fail to generate the needed jobs Focusing on case studies in Kenya Nigeria and Ethiopia this book takes an interdisciplinary approach that combines economic analysis life histories policy approaches methods and political economy theory to reframe the field with new questions The contributors offer alternative explanations for the failure of employment creation schemes in Africa and show how political settlements can bring together stakeholders to settle on win win approaches to productive employment schemes and inclusive development Providing new insights on the political economy of agrarian and labour relations in Africa this book will be of interest to policy actors and development practitioners wishing to support inclusive growth in Africa as well as to scholars of African politics and economics public policy and development

Ghana's Economic and Agricultural Transformation Xinshen Diao, P. B. R. Hazell, Shashi Kolavalli, Danielle Resnick, 2019 Using Ghana as a case study this work integrates economic and political analysis to explore the challenges and opportunities of Africa's growth and transformation

Agricultural Transformation Centres in Africa - Practical guidance to promote inclusive agro-industrial development Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2019-03-14 Over the next ten years the African rural space will be the theatre of profound changes as the activities envisaged for agricultural transformation are drastically scaled up Increased food demand and changing consumption habits driven by demographic factors such as population growth and urbanization are already leading to a rapid increase of net food imports opening a huge opportunity for the agribusiness sector of many African countries Against this backdrop and in line with its mission to spur sustainable economic development and social progress the African Development Bank AfDB in 2016 launched Feed Africa a strategy that is intended to contribute substantially to the transformation of African agriculture by 2025 and to reverse Africa's dependence on imported foods As part of this strategy AfDB is promoting the concept of staple crops processing zones SCPZs which are agrobased spatial development initiatives designed to concentrate agro processing activities within areas of high agricultural potential to boost productivity and integrate the production processing and marketing of selected commodities As essential components SCPZs include an agro processing hub a number of agricultural transformation centres ATCs and agricultural production areas The ATCs are designed to link smallholder farmers to the agro processing hub and are strategically located in high production areas with the aim of serving as aggregation points to accumulate products from the community to supply the hub for further value addition or to send them to centres of great demand for distribution and retail to consumers This study has attempted to assess the feasibility and applicability of the ATC concept to selected regions in Zambia Cote d'Ivoire and the United Republic of Tanzania Findings from the field have demonstrated the potential of ATCs to address community needs and constraints for a range of selected value chains and have helped to identify different ATC models that could work in each specific context

Agricultural Transformation in Ethiopia Atakiltie Beyene, 2018-10-15 For thousands of years Ethiopia has depended on its smallholding farmers to provide the bulk of its food needs But now such farmers find themselves under threat from environmental degradation climate change and declining productivity As a result smallholder agriculture has increasingly become subsistence oriented with many of these farmers trapped in a cycle of poverty Smallholders have long been marginalised by mainstream development policies and only more recently has their crucial importance been recognised for addressing rural poverty through agricultural reform This collection written by leading Ethiopian scholars explores the scope and impact of Ethiopia's policy reforms over the past two decades on the smallholder sector Focusing on the Lake Tana basin in northwestern Ethiopia an area with untapped potential for growth the contributors argue that any effective policy will need to go beyond agriculture to consider the role of health nutrition and local food customs as well as including increased safeguards for smallholder's land rights They in turn show that smallholders represent a vitally overlooked component of development strategy not only in Ethiopia but across the global South

Innovation, Regional Integration, and Development in Africa Samuel Ojo Oloruntoba, Mammo Muchie, 2018-07-26 This edited volume discusses the role of innovation and regional integration in economic development in Africa Over the past five decades post colonial African countries have struggled to break loose from the trap of poverty and underdevelopment through the adoption of various development strategies at regional national and continental levels However the results of both national and regional efforts at advancing development on the continent have been mixed Although the importance of agglomeration and fusion of institutions have long been recognized as possible path to achieving economic development in Africa the approach to regionalism has been unduly focused on market integration while neglecting other dimensions such as social policy mobility of labor educational policy biotechnology regional legislation manufacturing innovation and science and technology This volume investigates the link between innovation regional integration and development in Africa arguing that the immediate and long term development of Africa lies not just in the structural transformation of its economies but in the advancement of scientific and innovation capacities The book is divided into four parts Part I addresses the theoretical and conceptual underpinnings of innovation and regional integration in Africa Part II presents case studies which examine how regional economic institutions are fostering innovation in Africa Part III of the book deals with sectoral issues on innovation and integrated development in Africa Part IV sets the future research on innovation regional integration and development in Africa Combining theoretical analysis and a comparative interdisciplinary approach this volume is appropriate for researchers and students interested in economic development political economy African studies international relations agricultural science and geography as well as policymakers in regional economic communities and the African Union

Micro insights on the pathways to agricultural transformation: Comparative evidence from Southeast Asia and Sub-Saharan Africa Amare, Mulubrhan, Parvathi, Priyanka, Nguyen, Trung Thanh, 2023-01-27

Most studies of agricultural transformation document the impact of agricultural income growth on macroeconomic indicators of development Much less is known about the micro scale changes within the farming sector that signal a transformation precipitated by agricultural income growth This study provides a comparative analysis of the patterns of micro level changes that occur among small holder farmers in Uganda and Malawi in Sub Saharan Africa SSA and Thailand and Vietnam in Southeast Asia SEA Our analysis provides several important insights on agricultural transformation in these two regions First agricultural income in all examined countries is vulnerable to changes in precipitation and temperature an effect that is nonlinear and asymmetric SSA countries are more vulnerable to these weather changes Second exogenous increases in agricultural income in previous years improve non farm income and trigger a change in labor allocation within the rural sector in SEA However this is opposite in SSA where the increase in agricultural income reduces non farm income indicating a substitution effect between farm and non farm sectors These findings reveal clear agricultural transformation driven by agricultural income in SEA but no similar evidence in SSA
