Agriculture Technology In Developing:

Agriculture and Technology in Developing Countries Sumit Roy,1990 In this volume Roy examines the role played by the state in boosting food production in two major but significantly different developing economies He contrasts the policies and successes of India and Nigeria showing that self sufficiency does not bring equity in consumption in the case of India and that selective introduction of new technologies in Nigeria raises concerns about a lack of equity between regions and between classes After interdisciplinary analyses and village level case studies from both countries Roy presents a conceptual analysis appropriate to most developing countries

Agricultural Development in China and Africa Li Xiaoyun,Qi Gubo,Tang Lixia,Zhao Lixia,Jin Leshan,Guo Zhanfeng,Wu Jin,2012-05-04 Many African countries are increasingly interested in learning from China s experiences in achieving effective agricultural development The Chinese government and academic community are also keen to share experiences and lessons with Africa China made agriculture one of its development assistance priorities at the Third FOCAC Summit in Beijing in 2006 This systematic comparative study of agricultural development in China and Africa provides a unique basis for African countries and international organizations seeking to understand agricultural development in China and for China to understand agricultural development on the African continent The book highlights experiences and lessons from China and in particular analyzes why Africa has not yet been able to emulate China s agricultural development trajectory It compares the similarities and discrepancies in conditions processes and outcomes between China and Africa from the perspectives of investment science and technology policies and international development aid Based on this it explores which experiences and lessons from China s agriculture development can be shared with African countries in order to contribute to the sustainable improvement and transformation of African agriculture It does not claim that China has all of the answers but while recognizing the diversity within both China and Africa concludes that much can be gained from such a comparison
