through atmospheres How can being affected by an atmosphere give rise to knowledge What role does somatic nonverbal knowledge play in how we belong to places Atmospheric Knowledge takes up these questions through detailed analyses of practices that generate atmospheres and in which knowledge emerges through visceral intermingling with atmospheres From combined musicological and anthropological perspectives Birgit Abels and Patrick Eisenlohr investigate atmospheres as a compelling alternative to better known analytics of affect by way of performative and sonic practices across a range of ethnographic settings With particular focus on oceanic relations and sonic affectedness Atmospheric Knowledge centers the rich affordances of sonic connections for knowing our environments

Making a Muslim S. Akbar Zaidi, 2021-09-30 Using primarily Urdu sources from the nineteenth century this book allows us to rethink notions of the Muslim in its numerous complex and often contradictory forms which emerged in colonial North India after 1857 Allowing the self representation of Muslimness and its manifestations to emerge it contrasts how the colonial British made Muslims very differently compared to how the community envisaged themselves A key argument made here contests the general sense of the narrative of lamentation decay decline and a sense of self pity and ruination by proposing a different condition that of zillat a condition which gave rise to much self reflection resulting in action even if it was in the form of writing and expression By questioning how and when a Muslim community emerged in colonial India the book unsettles the teleological explanation of the Partition of India and the making of Pakistan

Trysts with Democracy Stig Toft Madsen, Kenneth Bo Nielsen, Uwe Skoda, 2011 This volume addresses the current configuration of democratic politics in South Asia from a cross disciplinary perspective The essays seek to examine the larger questions of how democratic values are embedded in social and political institutions and how localised and everyday political values inform the multiple ways in which democracy is understood and practised One of the strengths of this collection is the fact that it does not seek to provide answers to these questions from within one academic discipline only but rather brings together scholars with backgrounds in a variety of social science disciplines and the humanities A number of allied questions and engaging debates emerge throughout the book How may we distinguish between democracy's formal and less than formal dimensions in the context of South Asia How do notions of kinship kingship and community tie in with larger processes of democratic politics and deepening political mobilisation How do people construe the political in a context where the sphere of the religious seemingly seamlessly overlaps with the political where the political cannot be separated from the social and where the boundaries between state and society are blurred How do people practically engage with the political and with democratic processes at a local level and what might democracy mean in the vernacular Revival from Below Brannon D. Ingram, 2018-11-21 The Deoband movement a revivalist movement within Sunni Islam that quickly spread from colonial India to Pakistan Afghanistan Bangladesh and even the United Kingdom and South Africa has been poorly understood and sometimes feared Despite being one of the most influential Muslim revivalist movements of the last two centuries Deoband's connections to the Taliban have dominated the attention it has received from scholars and policy makers alike Revival from Below offers an important corrective reorienting our understanding of Deoband around its global reach which has profoundly shaped the movement's history In particular the author tracks the origins of Deoband's controversial critique of Sufism how this critique travelled through Deobandi networks to South Africa as well as the movement's efforts to keep traditionally educated Islamic scholars ulama at the center of Muslim public life The result is a nuanced account of this global religious network that argues we cannot fully understand Deoband without understanding the complex modalities through which it spread beyond South Asia South Asian Sufis Clinton Bennett, Charles M. Ramsey, 2012-03-01 Often described as the soul of Islam Sufism is one of the most interesting yet least known facets of this global religion Sufism is the softer more inclusive and mystical form of Islam Although militant Islamists dominate the headlines the Sufi ideal has captured the imagination of many Nowhere in the world is the handprint of Sufism more observable than South Asia which has the largest Muslim population of the world but also the greatest concentration of Sufis This book examines active Sufi communities in Pakistan India and Bangladesh that shed light on the devotion and deviation and destiny of Sufism in South Asia Drawn from extensive work by indigenous and international scholars this ethnographical study explores the impact of Iran on the development of Sufi thought and practice further east and also discusses Sufism in diaspora in such contexts as the UK and North America and Iran's influence on South Asian Sufism Savarkar and the Making of Hindutva Janaki Bakhle, 2024-02-06. A monumental intellectual history of the pivotal figure of Hindu nationalism. Vinayak Damodar Savarkar (1883-1966) was an intellectual ideologue and anticolonial nationalist leader in India's struggle for independence from British colonial rule, one whose anti-Muslim writings exploited India's tensions in pursuit of Hindu majority rule. Savarkar and the Making of Hindutva is the first comprehensive intellectual history of one of the most contentious political thinkers of the twentieth century. Janaki Bakhle examines the full range of Savarkar's voluminous writings in his native language of Marathi, from political and historical works to poetry, essays and speeches. She reveals the complexities in the various positions he took as a champion of the beleaguered Hindu community, an anticaste progressive, an erudite if polemical historian, a pioneering advocate for women's dignity and a patriotic poet. This critical examination of Savarkar's thought shows that Hindutva is as much about the aesthetic experiences that have been attached to the idea of India itself as it is a militant political program that has targeted the Muslim community in pursuit of power in postcolonial India. By bringing to light the many legends surrounding Savarkar, Bakhle shows how this figure from a provincial locality in colonial India rose to world historical importance. Savarkar and the Making of Hindutva also uncovers the vast hagiographic literature that has kept alive the myth of Savarkar as a uniquely brave, brilliant and learned revolutionary leader of the Hindu nation.
