global health organizations established an important public health initiative to prevent HIV transmission from mother to child. While this program which targets poor women attending public maternity hospitals has improved health outcomes for infants, it has resulted in sometimes devastatingly negative consequences for poor young mothers because these women are being tested for HIV in far greater numbers than their male spouses and are often blamed for bringing this highly stigmatized disease into the family. Based on research conducted by the author in India, this book chronicles the experiences of women from the point of their decisions about whether to accept HIV testing through their decisions about whether or not to continue with the birth, if they test HIV positive, their birthing experiences in hospitals, decisions and practices surrounding breast feeding vs bottle feeding, and their hopes and fears for the future of their children.
