military and civil aviation trends Roger Bilstein's study highlights these developments explaining how the pattern of aviation activities in the 1920s is reflected through succeeding decades At the same time the author discusses the social economic and political ramifications of this robust new technology Aviation histories usually pay little attention to aeronautical images as an aspect of popular culture Thoughtful observers of the 1920s such as Stuart Chase and Heywood Broun considered aircraft to be an encouraging example of the new technology workmanlike efficient and graceful perhaps representing a new spirit of international good will Flight Patterns is particularly useful for its discussion of both economic and cultural factors treating them as integrated elements of the evolving air age
