Air Pollution In The 21st Century Priority Issues And Policy:

Air Pollution in the 21st Century T. Schneider, 1999-03-12 This symposium was jointly organized by the United States Environmental Protection Agency and The Netherlands Ministry of Housing Spatial Planning and the Environment These proceedings will provide a stimulus for taking up the challenges of environmental policy development in the 21st century and will contribute to continuing co operation Clean air is a basic condition for health Air pollution aggravates respiratory problems leading to increased sickness absenteeism increased use of health care services and even premature mortality Air pollution is under intensive discussion in the United States and Europe In The Netherlands a wide range of policy instruments have been formulated which have reduced air pollution For example since 1975 sulphur dioxide and lead emissions have been reduced However emission reduction figures for many other substances are more modest Many air pollution problems persist because progress in countering these problems is nullified by growth in the economy and traffic Another important target is the prevention of climate change The international community is agreed that the increasing concentration of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere has led to a gradual increase in the earth s temperature In terms of the environmental consequences and social implications the greenhouse problem surpasses all other air quality problems Across Europe strategies are being developed to reduce acidification and photochemical air pollution An air emission ceiling for each country in the European Union is being agreed In the area of climate change there is good co operation between the United States The Netherlands and other EU Members States in the ongoing global negotiations This is the start of a new movement In the last century economies and societies developed through increasing human productivity In the next century they must develop through increasing the productivity of fuel and natural resources

International Symposium on Theory and Practice in Transport Economics Key Issues for Transport beyond 2000 15th International Symposium on Theory and Practice in Transport Economics, Tessaaloniki, Greece, 7th - 9th June 2000 European Conference of Ministers of Transport, 2002-06-07 A clear dichotomy exists between an European economy centred on international trade and the environmental damage to which this focus gives rise There is a need for a novel approach based on a shift away from the goal of ever faster travel and

Experts in Science and Society Elke Kurz-Milcke, Gerd Gigerenzer, 2007-05-08 Taking the viewpoint that experts are consulted when there is something important at stake for an individual a group or society at large this volume explores expertise as a relational concept In order to be culturally comparative this volume includes examples and discussions of experts in different countries and even in different time periods The topics include the roles of political experts scientific experts medical experts and legal experts

Understanding the Global Environment Samir Dasgupta, 2009 Globalization is often discussed in terms of its ecological ramifications Yet while ecological imbalance is today one of the greatest threats to mankind globalization is also a reality that is here to stay The volume therefore seeks to address how globalizing and environmental interests can be reconciled The essays in this volume state that globalization can work both in favour of and against the environment The major issues discussed in this topical volume are how globalization can be used to promote environmental reforms the role of individuals private organizations and governments in keeping environmental degradation in check and in promoting environmental reform globalization and ecological inequality women the environment and globalization changing nature of environmental movements overpopulation and the ecology the relation between the ecology and the economy and the effects of global climate changes

Trends in European Forest Tree Physiology Research Satu Huttunen,Hannele Heikkilä,Jürg Bucher,Björn Sundberg,Paul Jarvis,R. Matyssek,2013-04-17 The increasing concern for the serious problems of forest decline that occurred in the Northern Hemisphere in the late 1970 s and early 1980 s led to an emphasis on the necessity of promoting and setting up investigations into the basic physiological mechanisms of forest trees Since then the concern about rapid changes has decreased along with the increase of monitored data on European forests health status But tree physiology has faced new questions about changing climate and increasing atmospheric carbon dioxide concentrations Advances in plant molecular biology and forest genetics have opened up new avenues in the research on forest tree physiology At the same time it has become evident that molecular and genetic tools give only a basis for further research on tree structure and function which needs basic tree physiology again On the other hand the problems of forest decline in Europe are not over They are no longer discussed daily in the media but stress is an everyday phenomenon experienced by European forest trees For instance in southern Europe and mountainous regions drought stress and many other abiotic or biotic factors are stressors and cause problems to forests with many important social and protective functions Stress physiology is a branch of everyday physiology in traditional forestry How to grow a forest with maximal carbon binding functions and optimal wood quality and rich in biodiversity

Merchants of Doubt Naomi Oreskes,Erik M. Conway,2011-10-03 The U S scientific community has long led the world in research on such areas as public health environmental science and issues affecting quality of life These scientists have produced landmark studies on the dangers of DDT tobacco smoke acid rain and global warming But at the same time a small yet potent subset of this community leads the world in vehement denial of these dangers Merchants of Doubt tells the story of how a loose knit group of high level scientists and scientific advisers with deep connections in politics and industry ran effective campaigns to mislead the public and deny well established scientific knowledge over four decades Remarkably the same individuals surface repeatedly some of the same figures who have claimed that the science of global warming is not settled denied the truth of studies linking smoking to lung cancer coal smoke to acid rain and CFCs to the ozone hole Doubt is our product wrote one tobacco executive These experts supplied it Naomi Oreskes and Erik M Conway historians of science roll back the rug on this dark corner of the American scientific community showing how ideology and corporate interests aided by a too compliant media have skewed public understanding of some of the most pressing issues of our era Environmental Health Jacques Oosthuizen,2012-02-03 Environmental health practitioners worldwide are frequently presented with issues that require further investigating and acting upon so that exposed populations can be protected from ill health consequences These environmental factors can be broadly classified according to their relation to air water or food contamination However there are also work related occupational health exposures that need to be considered as a subset of this dynamic academic field This book presents a review of the current practice and emerging research in the three broadly defined domains but also provides reference for new emerging technologies health effects associated with particular exposures and environmental justice issues The contributing authors themselves display a range of backgrounds and they present a developing as well as a developed world perspective This book will assist environmental health professionals to develop best practice protocols for monitoring a range of environmental exposure scenarios Fiscal Year 2001 Budget Authorization Request United States.
