Lehman,2013-06-29 The idea for this book was born at the June 1996 meeting of the IDEAL Steering Committee in Milwaukee Wisconsin We had just completed a successful and stimulating special symposium during the annual meeting of the American Society for Limnology and Oceanography and enthusiasm was running high for the production of a volume that could assemble in one place the scientific findings that were starting to emerge from East Africa IDEAL an International Decade for the East African Lakes had ended one round of field investigations many of which had been centered on Lake Victoria As the climatologists geologists paleolimnologists and biologists displayed their results and debated interpretations it appeared that some paradigms were shifting and that new explanations of climate history and modern processes were taking shape The Steering Committee endorsed the production of a volume that would draw together the different research results that were emerging and which would be representative of the scope of science issues that exist within IDEAL This book follows in the spirit of The Limnology Climatology and Paleoclimatology of the East African Lakes published in 1996 but has a somewhat different purpose The previous publication also included original science results but it was conceived to review the state of knowledge identify critical problems and point to new paths of inquiry It accompanied the development of our first Science and Implementation Plan for the East African Lakes Geological Survey Water-supply Paper ,1975

Census Office, 1897 Social and Cultural Dynamics Pitirim Sorokin, 2017-09-29 This classic work is a revised and abridged version in a single volume of the work which more than any other catapulted Pitirim Sorokin into being one of the most famed figures of twentieth century sociology. Its original publication occurred before World War II. This revised version, written some twenty years later, reflects a postwar environment. Earlier than most, Sorokin took the consequences of the breakdown of colonialism into account in discussing the renaissance of the great cultures of African and Asian civilization. Other than perhaps F. S. C. Northrop, no individual better incorporated the new role of the Indian, Chinese, Japanese, and Arabic peoples in this postwar world. Sorokin came to view social and cultural dynamics in terms of three major processes: a major shift of mankind's creative center from Europe to the Pacific; a progressive disintegration of the sensate culture; and finally, the first blush of the emergence and growth of a new idealistic sociocultural order. This volume is perhaps most famous for revealing Sorokin's remarkable efforts to understand the relationship of war and peace to the process of social and political change. Contrary to received wisdom, he shows that the magnitude and depth of war grows in periods of social, cultural, and territorial expansion by the nation. In short, war is just as often a function of development as it is of social decay. This long unavailable volume remains one of the major touchstones by which we can judge efforts to create an international social science. There are few areas of social or cultural life that are not covered, from painting, art, and music to the ethos of universalism and particularism. These are terms which Sorokin introduced into the literature long before the rise of functional doctrines. For all those interested in cultural and historical processes, this volume provides the essence of Sorokin's remarkably prescient effort to achieve sociological transcendence by taking Democratic Paths and Trends Barbara Wejnert, 2010-07-16 Presents the issues of democratic trends. This title addresses worldwide changes and developments of democratization from historical and contemporary perspectives. It also presents discourses on the diffusion of democracy, paths of democratic transitions, worldwide trends towards democratization, as well as discussion about democracy in retreat.
