Profitable Offices Doug Yarrington, 2025-04-22 During the crucial period of its formation the opposing forces of corruption and anticorruption shaped Venezuela's new national state and its relationship with society National strongman Juan Vicente Gómez who ruled from 1908 to 1935 fastened control over key areas of the economy extracted wealth from the Venezuelan people and distributed resources to favorites Utilizing a variety of discursive strategies Venezuelans denounced this profiteering and in 1945 reformers seized power in an attempt to create a new political system free from the last remnants of Gómez's government The tragic unraveling of that attempt at reform led to the continuation of corruption setting the stage for the political crises of the late twentieth century Combining methods from the humanities and social sciences Profitable Offices offers a fresh interpretation of Venezuelan history during the first half of the twentieth century while also pioneering a new approach to the historical study of corruption and the struggle against it

Migration, Settlement and Belonging in Europe, 1500-1930s Steven King, Anne Winter, 2013-11-01 The issues around settlement belonging and poor relief have for too long been understood largely from the perspective of England and Wales This volume offers a pan European survey that encompasses Switzerland Prussia Belgium the Netherlands and Britain It explores how the conception of belonging changed over time and space from the 1500s onwards how communities dealt with the welfare expectations of an increasingly mobile population that migrated both within and between states the welfare rights that were attached to those who belonged and how ordinary people secured access to welfare resources What emerged was a sophisticated European settlement system which on the one hand structured itself to limit the claims of the poor and yet on the other was peculiarly sensitive to their demands and negotiations

State and Nation Making in Latin America and Spain: Volume 1 Miguel A. Centeno, Agustín E. Ferraro, 2013-03-29 The growth of institutional capacity in the developing world has become a central theme in twenty first century social science Many studies have shown that public institutions are an important determinant of long run rates of economic growth This book argues that to understand the difficulties and pitfalls of state building in the contemporary world it is necessary to analyze previous efforts to create institutional capacity in conflictive contexts It provides a comprehensive analysis of the process of state and nation building in Latin America and Spain from independence to the 1930s The book examines how Latin American countries and Spain tried to build modern and efficient state institutions for more than a century without much success The Spanish and Latin American experience of the nineteenth century was arguably the first regional stage on which the organizational and political dilemmas that still haunt states were faced This book provides an unprecedented perspective on the development and contemporary outcome of those state and nation building projects
