1982 Year Of Cancer:

Gynaecological Cancers in Australia ,2012 Journal of the National Cancer Institute ,2007-12 Each issue is packed with extensive news about important cancer related science policy politics and people Plus there are editorials and reviews by experts in the field book reviews and commentary on timely topics Cancer Epidemiology in China: What We Have Learnt So Far? Janguang Ji,Tianhui Chen,Xiaochen Shu,Hao Liu,2020-04-13 After several decades of development the socialist market economy of China is now the world s second largest economy by nominal GDP China is also the largest economy by purchasing power parity according to the International Monetary Fund In tandem with the development of the Chinese economy China s cancer burden is rising rapidly due to an ageing population and the adoption of unhealthy lifestyle behaviours According to the data from the National Central Cancer Registry NCCR of China the incidence and mortality of cancer have been increasing rapidly in China In recent years cancer has been the leading cause of death among city residents and the second cause of death among rural residents which has become a stark public health issue in China According to the NCCR an estimated 4.29 million new incident cases 12 thousand per day and 2.81 million death cases 7.5 thousand per day would occur in 2015 in China This corresponds to the age standardized incidence rate ASIR of 201.1 per 100 000 and age standardized mortality rate ASMR of 126.9 per 100 000 respectively Due to the geographical and ethnical disparities in living habits and healthcare level the cancer spectrum differs between different regions and ethnical groups in China According to the estimation from IARC the incidence of nasopharyngeal carcinoma and liver cancer is the world s highest in specific regions of China The incidence of some cancer types in Chinese urban areas such as colorectal prostate kidney and bladder cancers is similar to that in developed countries or regions where the incidence of cancer is highly associated with obesity and westernised lifestyles Nevertheless the incidence of some common cancer types in rural areas including oesophageal stomach liver and cervical cancers shares similarity with less developed countries or regions in the world where cancers are associated with chronic infectious agents due to poverty In addition the mortality rate is higher in rural areas which suggests a poorer cancer prognosis due to late diagnosis and or unsatisfying clinical treatment The distinct cancer patterns of different regions and or ethnic groups indicate a need for precise cancer prevention and control plans tailored for different geographical regions and or ethnic groups The overarching goal of the proposed Frontiers in Oncology Research Topic is to present current perspectives on cancer epidemiology in Chinese characteristics and provide current knowledge of cancer burden as well as cancer mortality to academic investigators clinicians and stakeholders from the translational clinical and public health communities Catalog of Cell Lines ,1990 JNCI, Journal of the National Cancer Institute National Cancer Institute (U.S.),1987 Breast Cancer in Australia ,2012 Includes separate statistics based on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander status Cancer Epidemiology Isabel dos Santos Silva,International Agency for Research on Cancer,1999 A basic textbook addressed to medical and public health students clinicians health professionals and all others seeking to understand the principles and methods used in cancer epidemiology Written by a prominent epidemiologist and experienced teacher at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine the text aims to help readers become competent in the use of basic epidemiological tools and capable of exercising critical judgment when assessing results reported by others Throughout the text a lively writing style and numerous illustrative examples often using real research data facilitate an easy understanding of basic concepts and methods Information ranges from an entertaining account of the origins of epidemiology through advice on how to overcome some of the limitations of survival analysis to a checklist of questions to ask when considering sources of bias Although statistical concepts and formulae are presented the emphasis is consistently on the interpretation of the data rather than on the actual calculations The text has 18 chapters The first six introduce the basic principles of epidemiology and statistics Chapters 7-13 deal in more depth with each of the study designs and interpretation of their findings Two chapters concerned with the problems of confounding and study size cover more complex statistical concepts and are included for advanced study A chapter on methodological issues in cancer prevention gives examples of epidemiology's contribution to primary prevention screening and other activities for early detection and tertiary prevention The concluding chapters review the role of cancer registries and discuss practical considerations that should be taken into account in the design planning and conduct of any type of epidemiological research
