Of European Forecast:

The Futures of Europe Commission of the European Communities, 1976-11-04 Originally published in 1976 this book is based on material produced by members of the Europe Plus Thirty project Weather and Climate Services in Europe and Central Asia ,2008-01-01 Weather and Climate Services in Europe and Central Asia is part of the World Bank Working Paper series These papers are published to communicate the results of the Bank s ongoing research and to stimulate public discussion Worldwide the accuracy and value of weather and climate services are rising bringing great economic benefits However many national hydrometeorological services in Europe and Central Asia are in decline As a result these potential gains are often missed Much more could be done to mitigate weather disasters support the productivity of smallholding and commercial agriculture conserve energy and promote safe aviation and transport by road and rail Although capacity deficiencies are serious they could be remedied significantly by relatively modest but sustained investments Chapter 1 describes the worldwide growth in weather forecasting skill presents principal issues and questions in Europe and Central Asia ECA and sets out the study s organization Chapter 2 assesses the needs of the key sectoral clients of the national hydrometeorological services in the region Chapter 3 addresses ECA s natural weather and climate issues vulnerability to transboundary weather events extreme weather variable weather and projected climate change Chapter 4 presents the forecasting workflow and then presents key regional and national capacity gaps Chapter 5 discusses ways to estimate the economic benefit of existing and upgraded forecasting capacity This study is part of an ongoing Regional Working Paper Series sponsored by the Chief Economist s Office in the Europe and Central Asia Region of the World Bank Regional Economic Outlook, Europe, October 2024 International Monetary Fund. European Dept.,2024-10-24 Europe s economy is recovering benefiting from a strong crises response Yet the recovery is falling short of its full potential Uncertainty about persistent core inflation policy directions and geopolitical conflicts is dampening the near term outlook In the longer term perennially weak productivity growth a result of limited scale and business dynamism amid new headwinds from fragmentation and climate change are holding back growth potential Steady macro policies are needed to navigate an uncertain environment This requires transitioning to a neutral monetary policy stance and reducing fiscal deficits without jeopardizing the recovery Policymakers also need to tackle barriers to higher potential growth A larger and more integrated single market for goods services and capital will incentivize investment innovation and generate scale benefits Deepening European integration will also strengthen economic resilience by insulating businesses and labor markets from global fragmentation pressures These are formidable policy challenges but now is the time to bring Europe to its full potential
