Healthy Places, Second Edition Nisha Botchwey,Andrew L. Dannenberg,Howard Frumkin,2022-07-12 The first edition of Making Healthy Places offered a visionary and thoroughly researched treatment of the connections between constructed environments and human health Since its publication over 10 years ago the field of healthy community design has evolved significantly to address major societal problems including health disparities obesity and climate change Most recently the COVID 19 pandemic has upended how we live work learn play and travel In Making Healthy Places Second Edition Designing and Building for Well Being Equity and Sustainability planning and public health experts Nisha D Botchwey Andrew L

Dannenberg and Howard Frumkin bring together scholars and practitioners from across the globe in fields ranging from public health planning and urban design to sustainability social work and public policy This updated and expanded edition explains how to design and build places that are beneficial to the physical mental and emotional health of humans while also considering the health of the planet This edition expands the treatment of some topics that received less attention a decade ago such as the relationship of the built environment to equity and health disparities climate change resilience new technology developments and the evolving impacts of the COVID 19 pandemic Drawing on the latest research Making Healthy Places Second Edition imparts a wealth of practical information on the role of the built environment in advancing major societal goals such as health and well being equity sustainability and resilience This update of a classic is a must read for students and practicing professionals in public health planning architecture civil engineering transportation and related fields

A Handbook of Sustainable Building Design and Engineering Dejan Mumovic, Mat Santamouris, 2013-06-17 The combined challenges of health comfort climate change and energy security cross the boundaries of traditional building disciplines This authoritative collection focusing mostly on energy and ventilation provides the current and next generation of building engineering professionals with what they need to work closely with many disciplines to meet these challenges A Handbook of Sustainable Building Engineering covers how to design engineer and monitor a building in a manner that minimises the emissions of greenhouse gases how to adapt the environment fabric and services of existing and new buildings to climate change how to improve the environment in and around buildings to provide better health comfort security and productivity and provides crucial expertise on monitoring the performance of buildings once they are occupied The authors explain the principles behind built environment engineering and offer practical guidance through international case studies

Making Healthy Places Andrew L. Dannenberg, Howard Frumkin, Richard J. Jackson, 2012-09-18 The environment that we construct affects both humans and our natural world in myriad ways There is a pressing need to create healthy places and to reduce the health threats inherent in places already built However there has been little awareness of the adverse effects of what we have constructed or the positive benefits of well designed built environments This book provides a far reaching follow up to the pathbreaking Urban Sprawl and Public Health published in 2004 That book sparked a range of inquiries into the connections between constructed environments particularly cities and suburbs and the health of residents especially humans Since then numerous studies have extended and refined the book's research and reporting Making Healthy Places offers a fresh and comprehensive look at this vital subject today There is no other book with the depth breadth vision and accessibility that this book offers In addition to being of particular interest to undergraduate and graduate students in public health and urban planning it will be essential reading for public health officials planners architects landscape architects environmentalists and all those who care about the design of their communities Like a well trained doctor Making Healthy Places presents a diagnosis of and offers treatment for problems related to the built environment Drawing on the latest scientific evidence with contributions from experts in a range of fields it imparts a wealth of practical information with an emphasis on demonstrated and promising solutions to commonly occurring problems

Sustainable Neighbourhoods in Australia Raymond Charles Rauscher, Salim Momtaz, 2015-04-21 This book examines the planning and implementation of policies to create sustainable neighborhoods using as a case study the City of Sydney The authors ask whether many past planning and development practices were appropriate to the ways that communities then functioned and what lessons we have learned The aim is to illustrate the many variations within a city and from neighborhood to neighborhood regarding renewal rehabilitation redevelopment replacement and new development Case study examples of nine City of Sydney neighborhoods note the different histories of planning and development in each Features of the studies include literature searches field work with photography and analysis The authors propose a set of sustainability principles which incorporate elements of the twenty seven principles of the 1992 Rio Declaration on Environment and Development Part One explores sustainable urban planning and the importance of planning tools that enable best planning outcomes for communities and investors Common factors in the nine case study neighborhoods are renewal redevelopment and development pressures affecting Sydney from the 1970s to 2014 Also discussed are the differing circumstances of planning faced by authorities developers and communities in each of the study areas Part Two of the book is focused on the case study areas in City of Sydney East area Woolloomooloo and Kings Cross Part Three covers case study areas in Sydney s Inner South area Chippendale Redfern and Waterloo District Part Four surveys the Inner West suburb of Erskineville Part Five looks at the City West area including the Haymarket District and the Pyrmont and Ultimo District Part Six concentrates on the North West area suburb of Glebe Part Seven of the book looks at the growth area of South Sydney District which includes the suburbs of Beaconsfield Zetland and the new localities of Victoria Park and Green Square The authors recount lessons learned and outline directions of planning for sustainable neighborhoods Finally the authors challenge readers to apply the lessons of these case studies to further advances in sustainable urban planning

Greening the Built Environment Maf Smith, John Whitelegg, Nick J. Williams, 2013-11-05 This work aims to provide a possible specification of the problems involved in greening the built environment and an articulation of the solutions It begins with a discussion of sustainability as a concept and its applicability to contemporary towns and cities The following chapters take up particular aspects of the built environment and sustainability in greater depth and include the construction industry transport health planning community and equity issues employment and the economy The links between environmental damage poverty and the economy are all themes in this book which also focuses on interconnections and on solutions to these three problems The final chapter explains how the achievement of sustainable development is in the authors opinion dependent on detailed solutions to everyday problems of modern society

Making Americans Healthier Robert F. Schoeni, James S. House, George A. Kaplan, Harold A. Pollack, 2008-01-25 The United States spends billions of dollars annually on social and economic policies

aimed at improving the lives of its citizens but the health consequences associated with these policies are rarely considered. In Making Americans Healthier, a group of multidisciplinary experts shows how social and economic policies seemingly unrelated to medical well-being have dramatic consequences for the health of the American people. Most previous research concerning problems with health and healthcare in the United States has focused narrowly on issues of medical care and insurance coverage but Making Americans Healthier demonstrates the important health consequences that policymakers overlook in traditional cost-benefit evaluations of social policy. The contributors examine six critical policy areas: civil rights, education, income support, employment, welfare, and neighborhood and housing. Among the important findings in this book, David Cutler and Adriana Lleras-Muney document the robust relationship between educational attainment and health and estimate that the health benefits of education may exceed even the well-documented financial returns of education. Pamela Herd, James House, and Robert Schoeni discover notable health benefits associated with the Supplemental Security Income Program, which provides financial support for elderly and disabled Americans. George Kaplan, Nalini Ranjit, and Sarah Burgard document a large and unanticipated improvement in the health of African American women following the enactment of civil rights legislation in the 1960s. Making Americans Healthier presents ground-breaking evidence that the health impact of many social policies is substantial. The important findings in this book pave the way for promising new avenues for intervention and convincingly demonstrate that ultimately social and economic policy is health policy. A Volume in the National Poverty Center Series on Poverty and Public Policy. Contemporary Approaches in Urbanism and Heritage Studies Rokhsaneh Rahbariyanzad, Editor, 2021-08-01. This book is an intellectual discourse and a concise compendium of current research in Architecture and Urbanism. Primarily, it is a book of readings of 24 chapters. The book brings together theories, manifestos, and methodologies on contemporary architecture and urbanism to raise the understanding for the future of architecture and urban planning. Overall, the book aimed to establish a bridge between theory and practice in the built environment. Thus, it reports on the latest research findings and innovative approaches, methodologies for creating, assessing, and understanding of contemporary built environment. Creating Built Environments Roderick Lawrence, 2020-06-14. Built environments are complex, emergent, systemic, and require contextual analysis. They should be understood before reconsidering how professionals and researchers of the built environment are educated and trained to reduce the gap between knowledge, practice, and real-world circumstances. There is an urgent need to rethink the role of policy makers, researchers, practitioners, and laypeople in the construction, renovation, and reuse of the built environment in order to deal with numerous environmental, ecological, economic, financial, and social ethical challenges of providing a habitat for current and future generations in a world of continual change. These challenges are too complex to be dealt with only by one discipline or profession. Combinations of different types of knowledge: knowing in praxis and tacit knowledge are needed. This book presents and illustrates recent innovative contributions with case studies focusing on five strategic domains and the interrelations between them These transdisciplinary contributions apply concepts methods and tools that facilitate convergence and concerted action between participants collaborating in policy definition and project implementation The methods and tools include experiments in living labs prototypes on site and virtual simulations as well as participatory approaches including citizen science the development of alternative scenarios and visioning plausible futures
