

A detailed watercolor illustration of a Victorian-era city street. The background features tall, ornate buildings with many windows and chimneys. In the foreground, a group of people in period clothing are walking. Men are wearing top hats and long coats, while women are wearing dresses and hats. A red boat is visible on a canal in the lower right. The overall style is soft and painterly.

Glover, Royce R. Ronning, Cecil R. Reynolds, 2013-03-09 The motivation underlying our development of a handbook of creativity was different from what usually is described by editors of other such volumes Our sense that a handbook was needed sprang not from a deluge of highly erudite studies calling out for organization nor did it stem from a belief that the field had become so fully articulated that such a book was necessary to provide summation and reference Instead this handbook was conceptualized as an attempt to provide structure and organization for a field of study that from our perspective had come to be a large scale example of a degenerating research program see Brown Chapter 1 The handbook grew out of a series of discussions that spanned several years At the heart of most of our interactions was a profound unhappiness with the state of research on creativity Our consensus was that the number of good works published on creativity each year was small and growing smaller Further we could not point to a journal text or professional organization that was providing leadership for the field in shaping a scientifically sound framework for the development of research programs in creativity At the same time we were casting about for a means of honoring a dear friend E Paul Torrance Our decision was that we might best be able to honor Paul and influence research on creativity by developing a handbook designed to challenge traditional perspectives while offering research agendas based on contemporary psychological views British Librarianship and Information Work 2001-2005 J.H. Bowman, 2016-04-15 This important reference volume covers developments in aspects of British library and information work during the five year period 2001 2005 Over forty contributors all of whom are experts in their subject provide an overview of their field along with extensive further references which act as a starting point for further research The book provides a comprehensive record of library and information management during the past five years and will be essential reading for all scholars library professionals and students

Tonic to the Nation: Making English Music in the Festival of Britain Nathaniel G. Lew, 2016-07-01 Long remembered chiefly for its modernist exhibitions on the South Bank in London the 1951 Festival of Britain also showcased British artistic creativity in all its forms In Tonic to the Nation Nathaniel G Lew tells the story of the English classical music and opera composed and revived for the Festival and explores how these long overlooked components of the Festival helped define English music in the post war period Drawing on a wealth of archival material Lew looks closely at the work of the newly chartered Arts Council of Great Britain for whom the Festival of Britain provided the first chance to assert its authority over British culture The Arts Council devised many musical programs for the Festival including commissions of new concert works a vast London Season of almost 200 concerts highlighting seven centuries of English musical creativity and several schemes to commission and perform new operas These projects were not merely directed at bringing audiences to hear new and old national music but to share broader goals of framing the national repertory negotiating between the conflicting demands of conservative and progressive tastes and using music to forge new national definitions in a changed post war world
