Jeffrey S. Soles,2022-12-31 This excavation of a Late Bronze Age town on the island of Mochlos in northeastern Crete includes the House of the Metal Merchant with two large bronze hoards and 13 other structures Each building is described with its stratigraphy architecture small finds ecofactual materials function and room use This is a two volume set Volume 1 contains the text and Volume 2 contains the Concordance Tables Figures and Plates Biennial Report Kansas State Historical Society,1879 Funerary and Related Cups of the British Bronze Age Claire Copper,Alex Gibson,Deborah Hallam,2022-06-30 Cups are the least studied of all Bronze Age funerary ceramics and their interpretations are still based on antiquarian speculation This book presents the first study of these often highly decorated items including a fully referenced and illustrated national corpus that will form the basis for future studies A United Europe of Things Jakub Sawicki,Michael Lewis,Mária Vargha,2024-01-01 This volume studies high and late medieval material culture in a Pan European context The idea of unity of culture in Medieval Latin Europe is well known in historical texts especially when it concerns the so called Europe North of the Alps This book investigates the similarities and differences in material culture between areas regions and political entities and opens the dialogue for a more interregional discussion The editors acknowledge that there are numerous challenges in understanding the phenomenon the volume addresses the fundamental one being defining or even redefining a common material culture of Europe Important in determining this is greater appreciation of how objects reflect interactions between peoples both local and foreign which can be driven by a variety of factors including trade conflict and diplomacy etc But just as important is observing the differences between things across Europe reflecting developments and transformations its cultural social and economic history These works are traditionally presented in isolation or at the local level maybe even in very specialized tomes as often it is thought their observation are not relevant to wider discourses Conversely what is clear however is that by interconnecting these seemingly introvert studies of specific artefact types or sites etc readers can better appreciate the similarities and differences in material culture across Europe This book is of interest to researchers in archaeology and material culture The Economy of a Norse

Settlement in the Outer Hebrides Niall Sharples, 2020-11-23 This book explores the economic evidence for the settlement at Bornais on South Uist. It reports in detail on the large assemblages of material found during the excavations at mounds 2 and 2A. There is important evidence for craft activity such as bone and antler working and this includes the only comb making workshop from a rural settlement in Britain. A large proportion of the copper alloy bone and antler assemblages comprise pieces of personal adornment and provide important information on the dress and thereby social relations within the settlement occupation. There is a large assemblage of iron tools and fittings which provides important information on the activities taking place at the settlement. The information derived from the artefact assemblages is complemented by that provided by the ecofactual material. Large amounts of animal fish and bird bones plus carbonised plant remains provide detailed information on agricultural practices and the processing, preparation and consumption of foodstuffs. It is clear that the Norse inhabitants of the settlement had access to a much richer variety of resources than had been exploited before the Viking colonisation of the region. The settlement also had a significantly wider range of connections; material culture indicates contacts to the south with the Irish Sea ports and Bristol and to the north with Shetland and the Viking homelands of Norway. The evidence produced by these excavations is exceptional and provides an unparalleled opportunity to explore medieval life in the Scandinavian kingdoms of Western Britain.
