Craft Production And Social Change In Northern China:

Craft Production and Social Change in Northern China Anne P. Underhill, 2012-12-06 This book offers an anthropological analysis of how craft production changed in relation to the development of complex societies in northern China. It focuses on the production and use of food containers, pottery and bronze vessels during the late prehistoric and early historic periods. A major theme is how production and use of prestige vessels changed in relation to increase in degree of social inequality. The research and writing of this book took place intermittently over a period of several years. When I first outlined the book in 1994 I planned to offer a more limited and descriptive account of social change during the late prehistoric period. In considering the human desire to display status with prestige goods, my initial approach emphasized how the case of northern China was similar to other areas of the world. I began to realize that in order to adequately explain how and why craft production changed in ancient China it was crucial to consider the belief systems that motivated production and use of food containers. Similarly, a striking characteristic of ancient China that I needed to include in the analysis was the preponderance of food containers rather than other goods that were buried with the deceased. I decided to investigate the social and ritual uses of food, beverages and containers during more than one period of Chinese history. Some strong patterns could have emerged during the late prehistoric period.

The Peasant Economy and Social Change in North China Philip Huang, 1985-06-01 The author presents a convincing new interpretation of the origins and nature of the agrarian crisis that gripped the North China Plain in the two centuries before the Revolution. His extensive research included eighteenth century homicide case records, a nineteenth century country government archive, large quantities of 1930s Japanese ethnographic materials and his own field studies in 1980. Through a comparison of the histories of small family farms and larger scale managerial farms, the author documents and illustrates the long term trends of agricultural commercialization, social stratification and mounting population pressure in the peasant economy. He shows how those changes, in the absence of dynamic economic growth combined over the course of several centuries to produce a majority not simply of land short peasants or of exploited tenants and agricultural laborers but of poor peasants who required both family farming and agricultural wage income to survive. This interlocking of family farming with wage labor furnished a large supply of cheap labor which in turn acted as a powerful brake of capital accumulation in the economy. The formation of such a poor peasantry ultimately altered both the nature of village communities and their relations with the elites and the state, creating tensions that led in the end to revolution.

Salt Production and Social Hierarchy in Ancient China Rowan K. Flad, 2011-07-18 This book examines the organization of specialized salt production at Zhongba, one of the most important prehistoric sites in the Three Gorges of China's Yangzi River valley. Rowan K. Flad demonstrates that salt production emerged in the second millennium BCE and developed into a large scale intense activity. As the intensity of this activity increased during the early Bronze Age, production became more coordinated, perhaps by an emergent elite who appear to have supported their position.

of authority by means of divination and the control of ritual knowledge This study explores evidence of these changes in ceramics the layout of space at the site and animal remains It synthesizes the data retrieved from years of excavation showing not only the evolution of production methods but also the emergence of social hierarchy in the Three Gorges region over two millennia Proceedings of the British Academy, Volume 121, 2002 Lectures British Academy,2003-12-04

Steadman, 2023-12-06

The new and updated edition of The Archaeology of Religion explores how archaeology interprets past religions, offering insights into how archaeologists seek out the religious ritual and symbolic meaning behind what they discover in their research. The book includes case studies from around the world, from the study of Upper Palaeolithic and hunter-gatherer religions to religious structures and practices in complex societies of the Americas, Mesopotamia, Egypt, India, and China. Steadman also includes chapters on the origins and development of key contemporary religions: Judaism, Christianity, Islam, among others, to provide an historical and comparative context. Three main themes are threaded throughout the book: These main themes involve the intersection between cultural and religious structures, religion reflects culture, including the importance of environment in shaping a culture's religion, the role religion can sometimes play as a method of social control, and the role religion can sometimes play as a key component in revitalizing a culture. Updated with new discoveries and theories and with two new chapters: Hunter-Gatherer Religions and Cultures in East Asia and with new sections on Neolithic Western Asia, the book remains an ideal introduction for courses that include a significant component on past cultures and their religions. Prehistoric Societies on the Northern Frontiers of China Gideon

Shelach, 2016-04-08 The northern borders of China, known as the Northern zone, were a key area of interaction between sedentary and nomadic people during the late second and early first millennium BCE. During this period, the region's unique economy, socio-political systems, local cultures, and identities took shape. Prehistoric Societies on the Northern Frontiers of China analyses the archaeological record to examine the changes that took place in Northern China in the first millennium. Drawing on field work in the Chifeng area of Inner Mongolia, the book explores dramatic changes in the construction of identities alongside more gradual changes in subsistence strategies and political organization. The book is unique in integrating the archaeological data and historical records of this period with anthropological theory to examine the role of identity construction and the use of symbol in the shaping of East Asian society. Shamans, Queens, and Figurines Sarah

Milledge Nelson, 2016-07 Sarah Nelson recognized as one of the key figures in the studying gender in the ancient world and women in archaeology brings together much of the work she has done in a single volume with her latest thinking on the development of gender studies in the field. The Cambridge World Prehistory Colin Renfrew, Paul Bahn, 2014-06-09 The Cambridge World Prehistory provides a systematic and authoritative examination of the prehistory of every region around the world from the early days of human origins in Africa two million years ago to the beginnings of written history which in some areas started only two centuries ago Written by a team of leading international scholars the volumes include both traditional topics and cutting edge approaches such as archaeolinguistics and molecular genetics and examine the essential questions of human development around the world The volumes are organised geographically exploring the evolution of hominins and their expansion from Africa as well as the formation of states and development in each region of different technologies such as seafaring metallurgy and food production The Cambridge World Prehistory reveals a rich and complex history of the world It will be an invaluable resource for any student or scholar of archaeology and related disciplines looking to research a particular topic tradition region or period within prehistory

Envisioning Eternal Empire Yuri Pines, 2009-01-01 This ambitious book looks into the reasons for the exceptional durability of the Chinese empire which lasted for more than two millennia 221 B C E 1911 C E Yuri Pines identifies the roots of the empire's longevity in the activities of thinkers of the Warring States period 453 221 B C E who in their search for solutions to an ongoing political crisis developed ideals values and perceptions that would become essential for the future imperial polity In marked distinction to similar empires worldwide the Chinese empire was envisioned and to a certain extent preplanned long before it came into being As a result it was not only a military and administrative construct but also an intellectual one Pines makes the argument that it was precisely its ideological appeal that allowed the survival and regeneration of the empire after repeated periods of turmoil Envisioning Eternal Empire presents a panoptic survey of philosophical and social conflicts in Warring States political culture By examining the extant corpus of preimperial literature including transmitted texts and manuscripts uncovered at archaeological sites Pines locates the common ideas of competing thinkers that underlie their ideological controversies This bold approach allows him to transcend the once fashionable perspective of competing schools of thought and show that beneath the immense pluralism of Warring States thought one may identify common ideological choices that eventually shaped traditional Chinese political culture

Tracing Prehistoric Social Networks through Technology Ann Brysbaert, 2014-05-30 This volume investigates smaller and larger networks of contacts within and across the Aegean and nearby regions covering periods from the Neolithic until Classical times 6000 323 BC It explores the world of technologies crafts and archaeological left overs in order to place social and technological networks in their larger economic and political contexts By investigating ways of production transport distribution and consumption this book covers a chronologically large period in order to expand our understanding of wider cultural developments inside the geographical boundaries of the Aegean and its regions of contact in the east Mediterranean This book brings together scholars expertise in a variety of different fields ranging from historical archaeology using textual evidence archaeometry geoarchaeology experimental work archaeobotany and archaeozoology Chapters in this volume study and contextualize archaeological remains and explore networks of crafts people craft traditions or people who employed various technologies to survive
