

A sepia-toned photograph of a woman with blonde hair, wearing a dark dress and a white apron, leaning over a long counter in a chocolate shop. The counter is filled with various chocolate products, including boxes and trays. In the background, there are shelves with more chocolate and a framed picture on the wall.

Crafting The Culture And History Of French Chocolate:

Crafting the Culture and History of French Chocolate Susan J. Terrio, 2000-09-28 This book on the crafting of chocolate in contemporary France is itself delicious. It will be a classic of French ethnography and contribute in important ways to the ongoing debate about the role of national identity in the European Union. Carole L. Crumley, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. A real pathbreaker. The intensity of Terrio's engagement with her respondents shines from almost every page. The work contributes to our understanding of the politics of heritage. It is a thoroughly researched and descriptively rich analysis of how anthropologists can approach weighty problems of identity, national, local relations and the ideology of self and other. Michael Herzfeld, author of Portrait of a Greek Imagination. Crafting the Culture and History of French Chocolate Susan J. Terrio, 2000-03-01 Follows the craft community of French chocolatiers, members of a tiny group experiencing intense international competition as they struggle to ensure the survival of their businesses. Tells a story that challenges conventional views of craft work and training models in late capitalism. Covers the world of craft leaders and local artisanal families in Paris and in southwest France and how they work and confront the representatives and structures of power from tastemakers, CEOs and ad executives to the technocrats of Paris and Brussels. The chocolatiers affirm their collective identity and their place in the present by commemorating selectively their role in history. Will appeal to anthropologists, cultural studies scholars and others with an interest in chocolate. Illustrated. The Oxford Handbook of Business History Geoffrey Jones, Jonathan Zeitlin, 2008-01-24 Introduction Approaches and debates Forms of business organization Functions of enterprise Enterprise and society Routledge International Handbook of Food Studies Ken Albala, 2013-05-07 Over the past decade there has been a remarkable flowering of interest in food and nutrition both within the popular media and in academia. Scholars are increasingly using foodways, food systems and eating habits as a new unit of analysis within their own disciplines and students are rushing into classes and formal degree programs focused on food. Introduced by the editor and including original articles by over thirty leading food scholars from around the world, the Routledge International Handbook of Food Studies offers students, scholars and all those interested in food-related research a one-stop, easy-to-use reference guide. Each article includes a brief history of food research within a discipline or on a particular topic, a discussion of research methodologies and ideological or theoretical positions, resources for research including archives, grants and fellowship opportunities as well as suggestions for further study. Each entry also explains the logistics of succeeding as a student and professional in food studies. This clear, direct Handbook will appeal to those hoping to start a career in academic food studies as well as those hoping to shift their research to a food-related project. Strongly interdisciplinary, this work will be of interest to students and scholars throughout the social sciences and humanities. Critical Craft Clare M. Wilkinson-Weber, Alicia Ory DeNicola, 2020-05-26 From Oaxacan wood carvings to dessert kitchens in provincial France, Critical Craft presents thirteen ethnographies which examine what defines and makes craft in a wide variety of practices from around the world.

Challenging the conventional understanding of craft as a survival a revival or something that resists capitalism the book turns instead to the designers DIY enthusiasts traditional artisans and technical programmers who consider their labor to be craft in order to comprehend how they make sense of it The authors ethnographic studies focus on the individuals and communities who claim a practice as their own bypassing the question of craft survival to ask how and why activities termed craft are mobilized and reproduced Moving beyond regional studies of heritage artisanship the authors suggest that ideas of craft are by definition part of a larger cosmopolitan dialogue of power and identity By paying careful attention to these sometimes conflicting voices this collection shows that there is great flexibility in terms of which activities are labelled craft In fact there are many related ideas of craft and these shape distinct engagements with materials people and the economy Case studies from countries including Mexico Nigeria India Taiwan the Philippines and France draw together evidence based on linguistics microsociology and participant observation to explore the shifting terrain on which those engaged in craft are operating What emerges is a fascinating picture which shows how claims about craft are an integral part of contemporary global change

Racist Trademarks Malte Hinrichsen, 2012 Since the beginning of commodity culture products have been marketed with images reflecting racist concepts of otherness Using the prominent examples of three companies Uncle Ben's Sarotti and Banania this book examines how racist trademark figures were established in the U S Germany and France and built on nation specific processes of racial stereotyping While it finds that the three figures mirror their national histories of slavery Orientalism and colonialism the book reveals that their paths through popular culture also followed strikingly similar patterns Conceived in an era of overt racism each symbol was challenged by social movements over the course of the 20th century and became increasingly marginalized in promotional activities In the early 2000s however all three figures were relaunched with supposedly new makeovers hitting once again at the heart of commodity culture and illustrating the subtle prevalence of racist stereotypes Series Racism Analysis Series A Studies Vol 3 and place one with profound ties to such diverse and sometimes unlikely issues as alcoholism drunk driving regional tourism Algeria's independence from French rule and integration into the European Economic Community In the 1930s cheap mass produced wines from the Languedoc region of southern France and French Algeria dominated French markets Artisanal wine producers worried about the impact of these inferior products on the reputation of their wines created a system of regional appellation labeling to reform the industry in their favor by linking quality to the place of origin At the same time the loss of Algeria once the world's largest wine exporter forced the industry to rethink wine production Over several decades appellation producers were joined by technocrats public health activists tourism boosters and other dynamic economic actors who blamed cheap industrial wine for hindering efforts to modernize France Today scholars food activists and wine enthusiasts see the appellation system as a counterweight to globalization and industrial food But as The Sober Revolution reveals French efforts to localize wine and integrate into global markets were not antagonistic but instead mutually dependent The time honored winemaking practices that we associate with a pastoral vision of traditional France were in fact a strategy deployed by the wine industry to meet the challenges and opportunities of the post 1945 international economy France's luxury wine producers were more market savvy than we realize

#You Know You're Black in France When

Trica Keaton,2023-02-14 A groundbreaking study about everyday antiblackness and its refusal in an officially raceblind France What does it mean to be racialized as black in France on a daily basis You Know You're Black in France When responds to that question Under the banner of universalism France messages a powerful and seductive ideology of blindness to race that disappears blackened people and the antiblackness they experience As Trica Keaton notes in everyday life France is anything but raceblind In this interdisciplinary study drawn from a range of critical scholarship including that of Philomena Essed and Frantz Fanon Keaton illuminates how Black racialized politicized French people distinctly expose and refuse what she calls raceblind republicanism By officially turning a blind eye to the specificity of antiblackness the French state in fact perpetuates it she argues along with structural racism Through daily life public policies visual culture the private lives of individuals and families shattered by police violence the French courts where many are fighting back and her own experiences Keaton charts the troubling dynamics and continuities of antiblackness in French society

Pizza and Pizza

Chefs in Japan: A Case of Culinary Globalization Rossella Ceccarini,2011-02-03 Scholars have extensively studied the entry of restaurant chains such as McDonald's into Asia and their reception while attention has also been paid to ethnic restaurants as agents of cultural globalization But what about the globalization of artisanal foods led by professional workers themselves This book looks at artisanal pizza in Japan as a cultural object globalized and domesticated through the agency of the food producer and shows that not only the food but also the craftsperson is going global The volume analyzes the reception of pizza in Japan the transnational flow of pizza chefs moving between Italy and Japan and the impact that the food and the workers movements have on the craft of pizza making itself

The Body Impolitic Michael Herzfeld, 2004 The Body Impolitic is a critical study of tradition not merely as an ornament of local and national heritage but also as a millstone around the necks of those who are condemned to produce it Michael Herzfeld takes us inside a rich variety of small town Cretan artisans workshops to show how apprentices are systematically thwarted into learning by stealth and guile This harsh training reinforces a stereotype of artisans as rude and uncultured Moreover the same stereotypes that marginalize artisans locally also operate to marginalize Cretans within the Greek nation and Greece itself within the international community What Herzfeld identifies as the global hierarchy of value thus frames the nation s ancient monuments and traditional handicrafts as evidence of incurable backwardness Herzfeld s sensitive observations offer an intimately grounded way of understanding the effects of globalization and of one of its most visible offshoots the heritage industry on the lives of ordinary people in many parts of the world today
