use artefacts to understand particular aspects of Roman behavior and experience including discrepant experiences according to factors such as age social position and left or right handedness which are fostered through artifact design The relationship between production and users of artifacts is also explored investigating what particular production methods make possible in terms of user experience and also examining production constraints that have unintended consequences for users The book examines topics such as the perceived agency of objects differences in social practice across the provinces cultural change and development in daily practice and the persistence of tradition and social convention It shows that design intentions everyday habits of use and the constraints of production processes each contribute to the reproduction and transformation of material culture

Craft Theory and Contemporary Architecture Grant Alford, 2025-05-28 This book offers a comprehensive exploration of craft theory in relation to contemporary architecture. Craft is an old and familiar idea but the line between craft and art or craft and mere manufacturing for example is notoriously hard to describe. In architecture a similarly blurred line between the design process on the one hand and the physical making of buildings on the other lies at the center of various debates about what it means to do architecture. The growth and development of craft theory in recent years suggest new insights into these architectural debates but situating the meaning of craft within architecture within today's technological landscape is a complex problem. Alford responds to this challenge by collecting various narratives from craft theory and other fields and discerning among them new lenses through which to view contemporary architectural practice. Episodes from this expanded view of craft in architecture go beyond predictable accounts of Ruskin and Morris to envision new models of practice, new ways of engaging other building professionals and new ways for architects to understand their own labor and the nature of how and what kinds of things they themselves craft. Architecture is changing and within the ongoing story of craft explored in this book are new and surprising ways to understand design and construct the built environment. Written for students and scholars, this book challenges and extends the legacy of craft thinking in architecture.

The Romans Kevin M. McGeough, 2009-03-17 The Romans provides an accessible introduction to the history, society, and scholarship of one of the most captivating and enduring civilizations in human history. From the establishment of the monarchy and the Republican era to the decline of the Empire, this comprehensive volume examines every aspect of Roman culture from both historical and archaeological perspectives. In addition to surveying the well-established subjects of Roman history, author Kevin McGeough discusses the latest events in the archaeological investigation of Rome, such as the recent excavations at the Temple of Castor and Pollux in the Roman Forum and the controversial identification of an ossuary thought by some to hold the body of James the brother of Jesus. The text is accompanied by carefully chosen illustrations, maps, a glossary, and a chronology. Throughout, general readers and students will gain a vivid understanding of Roman civilization and of why it still captures our imagination today.

Economy, Family, and Society from Rome to Islam Simon Swain, 2013-04-25 A full edition and study of Bryson's Management of the Estate, edited by a leading expert in both Classics and Arabic literature.

Unbound from Rome John North Hopkins, 2024-01-01 An expansive look at ancient art and architecture over four centuries, highlighting the diversity of makers and viewers within and beyond Rome's ever-changing political boundaries. Roman art and architecture is typically understood as being bound in some ways to a political event or as a series of aesthetic choices and experiences stemming from a center in Rome itself. Moving beyond the misleading catchall label "Roman," John North Hopkins aims to untangle the many peoples whose diverse cultures and traditions contributed to Rome's visual culture over a four hundred year time span.

across the first millennium BCE Hopkins carefully reconsiders some of the period's most iconic works by way of the many practices and peoples bound up with them. Some of these include the extraordinary and complex effort to build the Temple of Jupiter, the creative actions and diverse encounters tied to luxury objects like the Ficoroni Cista and the important meanings held by sacred temple sculpture and votive offerings through their making and subsequent practices of devotion. A key purpose of this book is to question an idea of Rome that has focused on elite production and the textual record. Hopkins instead calls attention to the lesser-known, often silenced actors who were integral players. The result is a deep understanding of a diverse and historically rich Italic and Mediterranean world as well as the myriad cultures, communities, and individuals who would have made and experienced art within and around the changing political boundaries of Rome.
