Five Million Steps Lon Chenoweth, 2009. Something happened there that is too rare among men. We touched the soul and we touched heaven. The encounter put fire in my bones and brought a deep humility to know that God was at work in this crazy project of mine. Hiking from Georgia to Maine sounds incredulous to most. To Lon Chenoweth it is a journey that calls him into the wild, a journey that reveals true tests of faith and will in the direst circumstances. What began as a dream in his teens to trek the Appalachian Trail takes flight with a preliminary hike with his two young boys from Amicalola Falls to Unicoi Gap. The initial intrigue wears off and Lon quickly realizes he will be making a long arduous journey alone save for a few hiking partners and unique characters met along the way. As a section hiker, Lon, best known as the Arkansas Traveler, spans the course of fourteen years climbing 237 mountains in a backcountry with a culture all its own. The romance of trekking across the mountains quickly wears off and the presence of God teaches him perseverance and faith. While at times lonesome and hard, the undeniable urge to return to nature keeps Lon climbing and chronicling his Five Million Steps.
