Transfusions in cardiac surgery patients:

- 50% of patients undergoing cardiac procedures receive blood transfusions
- Complex cardiac operations like redo procedures, aortic operations, and implantation of VADs require blood transfusion with much greater frequency
- Increasing evidence suggests that blood transfusion during cardiac procedures portends worse short and long-term outcomes
- Interventions aimed at reducing bleeding and blood transfusion during cardiac procedures are an increasingly important part of Quality Improvement

Blood Conservation In Cardiac Surgery:

Blood Conservation in Cardiac Surgery Karl H. Krieger, O. Wayne Isom, 2012-12-06 Drs Karl Krieger and Wayne Isom two of the foremost cardiothoracic surgeons have brought together many of the top cardiologists and hematologists as well as most of their department at the New York Hospital Cornell Medical Center to produce an impressive book on blood conservation and transfusion in cardiac surgery The book will serve as the most current reference source on all aspects of blood conservation from the use of erythropoietin to the benefits of post operative blood salvage In addition the book outlines an overall clinical approach to blood transfusion and conservation The subject matter covers numerous areas involved in the preoperative considerations in cardiac surgery the intraoperative decision making in cardiac surgery postoperative bleeding and management and a section on the algorithm for bloodless surgery at the New York Hospital Cornell Medical Center

Blood Conservation in Cardiac Surgery Robert David Slight, Pankaj Mankad, 2008 Cardiac surgery is traditionally a heavy user of blood and blood products Until recently the benefits of transfusion have been largely assumed and the risks relatively ignored This has prompted us to examine new ways of minimising patient exposure to donor red blood cells RBC s At the present time most clinical guidelines for RBC transfusion are based mainly upon haemoglobin concentration Hb As Hb may be artificially depressed by the haemodiluting effect of the heavy clear fluid load associated with cardiac surgery transfusing based upon Hb alone may overestimate the requirement for RBC s Where such haemodilution is present systemic oxygenation may be maintained through a viscosity mediated patho physiological response The work reported in this thesis attempts to explore the relative contribution of both red cell volume RCV and plasma volume PV to the anaemia encountered following cardiac surgery while also examining factors that may be associated with a low post operative RCV In addition we have explored on a theoretical basis what Hb would represent a critical level of systemic oxygen delivery DO<sub>2</sub>Crit Taken together this has allowed us to develop an RCV based transfusion guideline aimed at reducing the incidence of unnecessary and potentially counter productive RBC transfusion As RBC s may be associated with pulmonary endothelial damage we have also studied the impact of the RCV guideline developed on post operative acute lung injury ALI Finally in a separate study the merits of a simple activated clotting time ACT based system of anti coagulation management for cardiopulmonary bypass CPB versus that of an individualised heparin management system HMS are described Blood Use in Cardiac Surgery N. Friedel, R. Hetzer, D. Royston, 2013-06-29 Cardiac surgery has developed dramatically since the first open heart operations were performed in the mid 1950s Although the improvement of surgical technique extracorporeal circulation and postoperative management has contributed to a marked reduction of morbidity and mortality the development of cardiac surgery to its present state would not have been possible without blood substitution by homologous donor blood Only 20 years ago open heart operations required an average of 8 units of blood preserves The excessive need of donor blood in those early days was mainly due to premature surgical technique insecure control of anticoagulation severe blood trauma by extracorporeal circulation and the lack of retransfusion technologies that would have allowed the reuse of shed mediastinal blood. The introduction of new technologies such as normovolemic hemodilution in intraoperative autotransfusion postoperative return of shed mediastinal blood and predonation of autologous blood has greatly reduced donor blood requirements. At present the majority of routine coronary artery surgical procedures can be performed without any blood transfusion. Blood loss however may be considerable in patients undergoing complex valve surgery or reoperations as they often require several units of transfused blood. Blood conservation has now become an area of major interest for the cardiac surgeon. This increased concern is caused by infectious complications of blood transfusion in particular hepatitis and more recently AIDS.

Perioperative Blood Transfusion and Blood Conservation in Cardiac Surgery, 2007 Patient Blood Management in Cardiac Surgery Christian von Heymann, Christa Boer, 2019-06-03 This book provides a multidisciplinary approach to the maintenance of hemostasis and minimisation of blood loss in patients undergoing cardiac surgery. All aspects of patient blood management are covered that may contribute to a reduction in perioperative bleeding and transfusion requirements in cardiac surgery. This is achieved through practical cases and a theoretical background that gives a better understanding of patient hemostasis and the occurrence of bleeding complications. This book is relevant to cardiac surgeons, anesthesiologists, clinical perfusionists, hematologists and intensivists.

Advanced Therapy in Cardiac Surgery Kenneth L. Franco, Edward D. Verrier, 2003 Advanced Therapy in Cardiac Surgery Second Edition This second edition of Advanced Therapy in Cardiac Surgery presents state of the art techniques and an in depth review of cardiac surgery from the leading authorities. The Advanced Manual of Perioperative Care in Adult Cardiac Surgery Robert M. Bojar, 2021-01-26 Now in its sixth edition Robert M Bojar's Manual of Perioperative Care in Adult Cardiac Surgery remains the go to practical guide for all of those involved in the care of the cardiac surgery patient. Written in outline format it provides a comprehensive detailed and clearly explained review of cardiac surgical disease and perioperative management that is of value to practicing cardiac surgeons as well as to cardiologists, residents, fellows, advanced practice providers, critical care and floor nurses, perfusionists and medical students. Extensively rewritten with updated references to incorporate the latest concepts, guidelines, protocols and medications used in cardiac surgical practice, this classic text retains the pragmatic features that have made it the gold standard reference that clinicians have used worldwide for the past 30 years. Highlights include: Full coverage of cardiac surgical diseases including pathophysiology, indications for surgery per guidelines and figures of operative procedures and diagnostic techniques with a panoply of examples. Chronologic evaluation of patients from preoperative assessment to intraoperative considerations to postoperative care for each procedure. Extensive chapters discussing organ system management in the ICU followed by a discussion of later postoperative management and problems. Incorporation of newer techniques: TAVR, Mitraclip etc within the chronologic format. Easy access to information using an outline format, markers on the free edges to identify chapters.
