

A movie poster for the Shudder original 'Blood Relatives'. The scene is set at night with a large, bright full moon in a dark, cloudy sky. In the center, a man and a woman stand in front of a dark classic car with its headlights on. The man, on the left, wears a black leather jacket, a black t-shirt, and sunglasses, and has a wide, toothy grin. The woman, on the right, wears a denim jacket, a red shirt, and sunglasses, looking off to the side. In the background to the right, a yellow diamond-shaped road sign reads 'DEAD END' and a blue rectangular sign below it reads 'ROUTE 66'.

Family sucks.

Blood Relations Chris Knight, 2013-10-15 The emergence of symbolic culture is generally linked with the development of the hunter-gatherer adaptation based on a sexual division of labor This original and ingenious book presents a new theory of how this symbolic domain originated Integrating perspectives of evolutionary biography and social anthropology within a Marxist framework Chris Knight rejects the common assumption that human culture was a modified extension of primate behavior and argues instead that it was the product of an immense social sexual and political revolution initiated by women Culture became established says Knight when evolving human females began to assert collective control over their own sexuality refusing sex to all males except those who came to them with provisions Women usually timed their ban on sexual relations with their periods of infertility while they were menstruating and to the extent that their solidarity drew women together these periods tended to occur in synchrony The result was that every month with the onset of menstruation sexual relations were ruptured in a collective ritualistic way as the prelude to each successful hunting expedition This ritual act was the means through which women motivated men not only to hunt but also to concentrate energies on bringing back the meat Knight shows how this hypothesis sheds light on the roots of such cultural traditions as totemic rituals incest and menstrual taboos blood sacrifice and hunters atonement rites Providing detailed ethnographic documentation he also explains how Native American Australian Aboriginal and other magico-religious myths can be read as derivatives of the same symbolic logic

Kastan,2012-12-06 M B KASTAN Cancer is a disease resulting from alterations of cellular genes which cause phenotypic changes in somatic cells Usually when we think about genetic diseases we think about inheriting one or two abnormal genes from our parents and these gene abnormalities confer the disease phenotype In contrast in the majority of cancers no such inherited gene abnormalities can be identified which does not mean that they do not exist and there is no obvious family history suggesting an inherited disease The vast majority of genes which are altered in the cancer cells are not transmitted through the germ line but rather become abnormal in somatic cells sometime during the lifetime of the individual Thus the critical question which arises is how do these genetic changes occur in somatic cells Epidemiologic data suggest that exposure to environmental carcinogens contributes to the genesis of at least 80% of all human cancers DOLL and PETO 1981 Thus it is natural to suspect that the genetic changes in somatic cells which contribute to the transformed phenotype arise from DNA damage caused by such exposures Therefore understanding how cells respond to DNA damaging agents is likely to be an important component of our understanding of the genesis of human tumors
