Decision To Go To The Moon Project Apollo And The National Interest:

The Decision to Go to the Moon John M. Logsdon, 1976 The decision announced by John F Kennedy on May 25 1961 initiating the expedition to the moon is now documented in full for future students of history To John Logsdon whose approach is that of a political scientist examining the influence of men and events on the decision making process the decision to land a man on the moon before this decade is out was wholly political rather than military although overtones of implied defense were useful in obtaining congressional support Moreover he notes it was made without the support of the scientific community although their previous research efforts were expected partially to offset this deterrent Although the success of the Russian manned orbit and the fiasco of the Bay of Pigs invasion certainly influenced the timing in the author's interpretation the Kennedy decision manages to escape the narrow definition of a public relations exhibition In Kennedy's view he emphasizes the security of the country itself was inseparably linked to a position of prestige in world opinion Nor was he a particular enthusiast of space exploration for its own rewards As he remarked to one of his advisors If you had a scientific spectacular on this earth that would be more useful say desalting the ocean or something just as dramatic and convincing as space then we would do that The thoroughness of this book as a historical record is evident throughout NASA historical records and government documents not previously released including several Presidential papers are used in the analysis and the author weaves these records together with subtleties of opinion from interviews with NASA officials and such Kennedy advisors as Theodore Sorenson McGeorge Bundy David Bell and Jerome Wiesner Where No Man Has Gone Before William D. Compton, 1996-12 Exploring the Unknown: Selected Documents in the History of the U.S. Civilian Space Program John M. Logsdon, 1996 Special Bibliography Series United States Air Force Academy. Library, 1976 Special Bibliography Series, 1957 Exploring the Unknown Roger D. Launius, 1995 Coming after the successful first volume the second volume covers the important topics of NASA relations with the military foreign space agencies and NASA industry university relations Organized in a similar format as volume I this book should be very useful to students of space exploration Truth, Lies, and O-Rings Allan J McDonald, 2012-03-11 On a cold January morning in 1986 NASA launched the Space Shuttle Challenger despite warnings against doing so by many individuals including Allan McDonald The fiery destruction of Challenger on live television moments after launch remains an indelible image in the nation's collective memory In Truth, Lies, and O-Rings McDonald a skilled engineer and executive relives the tragedy from where he stood at Launch Control Center As he fought to draw attention to the real reasons behind the disaster he was the only one targeted for retribution by both NASA and his employer Morton Thiokol Inc makers of the shuttle's solid rocket boosters In this whistle blowing yet rigorous and fair minded book McDonald with the assistance of internationally distinguished aerospace historian James R Hansen addresses all of the factors that led to the accident some of which were never included in NASA's Failure Team report submitted to the Presidential Commission Truth, Lies, and O-Rings is the first look at the Challenger tragedy and its aftermath from someone who was on the inside recognized the potential disaster and tried to prevent it It also addresses the early warnings of very severe debris issues from the first two post Challenger flights which ultimately resulted in the loss of Columbia some fifteen years later

Viewing the Earth Pamela Etter Mack,1990

Viewing the Earth examines the role played by interest groups in shaping the process of technological change offering valuable insights into how technologies evolve It traces the history of Landsat from its origins through the launch and use of the first few satellites showing how a variety of forces shape the form and the eventual reception of any new technology The

Landsat earth resources satellite system was a project of The National Aeronautics and Space Administration that was created to collect data about earth resources from space The first satellite was launched in 1972 with great fanfare and high expectations The data proved useful for everything from finding oil to predicting harvests yet today the successful commercialization of the program is still uncertain Why To answer this question Pamela E Mack focuses on the negotiating process that went on among different parts of the space agency other interested government agencies and various organizations that were potential users of the data This formal and informal negotiating process she points out involved not only choices between alternative technologies and the satellite but also conflicting definitions of what the satellite would do The story is full of fascinating detail from the concerns of the intelligence community over civilian satellites looking at the earth to the politics of agricultural survey Pamela E Mack is Associate Professor in the History Department at Clemson University
