Holsapple, Andrew B. Whinston, 2013-06-29 Over the past two decades many advances have been made in the decision support system DSS field They range from progress in fundamental concepts to improved techniques and methods to widespread use of commercial software for DSS development Still the depth and breadth of the DSS field continues to grow fueled by the need to better support decision making in a world that is increasingly complex in terms of volume diversity and interconnectedness of the knowledge on which decisions can be based This continuing growth is facilitated by increasing computer power and decreasing per unit computing costs But it is spearheaded by the multifaceted efforts of DSS researchers The collective work of these researchers runs from the speculative to the normative to the descriptive It includes analysis of what the field needs designs of means for meeting recognized needs and implementations for study It encompasses theoretical empirical and applied orientations It is concerned with the invention of concepts frameworks models and languages for giving varied helpful perspectives It involves the discovery of principles methods and techniques for expeditious construction of successful DSSs It aims to create computer based tools that facilitate DSS development It assesses DSS efficacy by observing systems their developers and their users This growing body of research continues to be fleshed out and take shape on a strong but still developing skeletal foundation Decision Support in Organizational Transformation Patrick Humphreys, Sabino Ayestaran, Andrew McCosh, Bill Mayon-White, 2013-11-11 The main purpose of this paper is to contribute to the discussion about the design of computer and communication systems that can aid the management process

1.1 Historical Overview

We propose that Decision Support System can be considered as a design conception conceived within the computer industry to facilitate the use of computer technology in organisations Keen 1991 This framework built during the late 1970s offers computer and communication technology as support to the decision process which constitutes in this view the core of the management process The DSS framework offers the following capabilities

- Access ease of use
- wide variety of data analysis and modelling capacity
- Technological software generation tools
- Development modes interactive and evolutionary

Within this perspective computer and communication technologies are seen as an amplification of the human data processing capabilities which limit the decision process Thus the human being is understood metaphorically as a data processing machine Mental processes are associated with the manipulation of symbols

Organizational Decision Support Systems Ronald M. Lee,Andrew M. McCosh,Piero Migliarese,1988

Decision Support Systems DSS are typically viewed as computerized aids for managerial decision making at the individual level By contrast this volume focuses on DSS for group and organizational decision making The contributions are from academics and practitioners who are developing new concepts techniques and software to support decision related activities involving multiple participants The book is in five sections The first looks at the organizational setting of group decision support systems and experiences of various enterprises in their use The second section is concerned with supporting negotiation processes decision situations where the participants have conflicting goals The third section deals with analysis and design issues in developing group organizational DSS Behavioral issues relating to the impact of the technology are examined in section four while the fifth section discusses practical experiences with group decision rooms

Computer-Assisted Management and Control of Manufacturing Systems Spyros G. Tzafestas,2012-12-06

Modern manufacturing systems involve many processes and operations that can be monitored and controlled at several levels of intelligence At the highest level there is a computer that supervises the various manufacturing functions whereas at the lowest level there are stand alone computer controlled systems of manufacturing processes and robotic cells Until recently computer aided manufacturing systems constituted isolated islands of automation each oriented to a particular application but present day systems offer integrated approaches to manufacturing and enterprise operations These modern systems known as computer integrated manufacturing CIM systems can easily meet the current performance and manufacturing competitiveness requirements under strong environmental changes CIM systems are much of a challenge and imply a systemic approach to the design and operation of a manufacturing enterprise Actually a CIM system must take into account in a unified way the following three views the user view the technology view and the enterprise view This means that CIM includes both the engineering and enterprise planning and control activities as well as the information flow activities across all the stages of the system Decision Support David Schuff, David Paradice, Frada Burstein, Daniel J. Power, Ramesh Sharda, 2010-11-25 This volume of Annals of Information Systems will acknowledge the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the International Society for Decision Support Systems ISDSS by documenting some of the current best practices in teaching and research and envisioning the next twenty years in the decision support systems field The volume is intended to complement existing DSS literature by offering an outlet for thoughts and research particularly suited to the theme of describing the next twenty years in the area of decision support Several subthemes are planned for the volume One subtheme draws on the assessments of internationally known DSS researchers to evaluate where the field has been and what has been accomplished A second subtheme of the volume will be describing the current best practices of DSS research and teaching efforts A third subtheme will be an assessment by top DSS scholars on where the DSS discipline needs to focus in the future The tone of this volume is one of enthusiasm for the potential contributions to come in the area of DSS contributions that must incorporate an understanding of what has been accomplished in the past build on the best practices of today and be integrated into future decision making practices The primary questions raised by this volume are What will information systems based decision support entail in twenty years What research is needed to realize the envisioned future of information systems based decision support How will the teaching of information systems based decision support change over the next twenty years What are the best practices of teaching in the decision support area that can be leveraged to best disseminate DSS knowledge advances to students and practitioners Improving Decision Making in Organisations Alan G. Lockett, Gerd Islei, 2012-12-06 MCRM has been an active research area for over 20 years and the previous conferences clearly showed a tremendous growth of interest A variety of successful applications and recent developments of interactive computer software to support decision making confirm a sustained progress We therefore decided to make our theme Improving Decision Making in Organisations the aim was to take stock of the impact of multicriteria concepts in organisations and to involve management practitioners from a wide range of backgrounds To this end the conference was organised round five broad themes and papers were solicited on the following topics Psychology how do individuals in practice use and relate to the methodologies Organisation how do our models fit into the decision making framework of real organisations Application how have the models been used in practice and what is the users view Methodology what are the new areas in model development Related Areas is there complementary work eg Expert Systems which may be attempting to solve very similar problems We call for papers produced an overwhelming response of over 100 papers they were from a variety of disciplines and applications and we decided to devote approximately one day to each of the five areas We are very impressed by the results which can be seen in this edited proceedings Methodology, Implementation and Applications of Decision Support Systems A.
