any object nor does it allow unification of the Creator and creation under any circumstances This book compiled by Dr A Rahman entitled Islamic Monotheism Tauheed is pleasantly readable because he has elucidated many difficult concepts of Tauheed contained in the Holy Qur an The book is divided into seven chapters While the first two chapters are introductory the author goes deeper into the faith of monotheism in the third and fourth chapters and seeks to assert monotheism by discussing Shirk i e commission of the utmost blasphemy of associating creation with the Creator In the fourth chapter he has effectively dealt with even such common human weaknesses as belief in astrology talisman spells of charm etc The fifth chapter deals with Mysticism and Sufism in the context of monotheism This is an area that has been probed widely and in depth by the scholars both in the oriental and western worlds because of the mystic ideas it holds out The sixth and seventh chapters have elaborated some more topics on Islamic Monotheism Dr Rahman has collected views and theories from different sources and presented them systematically to make them easy to understand Besides he has drawn conclusions on them from the Islamic point of view The author's effort is an onerous one He has deliberated upon the topics with such scholarship that those who want to know the essence of Islamic monotheism will surely benefit
