Exposed Christopher T. Robertson, 2019-12-17 A sharp exposé of the roots of the cost exposure consensus in American health care that shows how the next wave of reform can secure real access and efficiency The toxic battle over how to reshape American health care has overshadowed the underlying bipartisan agreement that health insurance coverage should be incomplete Both Democrats and Republicans expect patients to bear a substantial portion of health care costs through deductibles copayments and coinsurance In theory this strategy empowers patients to make cost benefit tradeoffs encourages thrift and efficiency in a system rife with waste and defends against the moral hazard that can arise from insurance But in fact as Christopher T Robertson reveals this cost exposure consensus keeps people from valuable care causes widespread anxiety and drives many patients and their families into bankruptcy and foreclosure Marshalling a decade of research Exposed offers an alternative framework that takes us back to the core purpose of insurance pooling resources to provide individuals access to care that would otherwise be unaffordable Robertson shows how the cost exposure consensus has changed the meaning and experience of health care and exchanged one form of moral hazard for another He also provides avenues of reform If cost exposure remains a primary strategy physicians hospitals and other providers must be held legally responsible for communicating those costs to patients and insurance companies should scale cost exposure to individuals ability to pay New and more promising models are on the horizon if only we would let go our misguided embrace of incomplete insurance
