The Prague Deception Victor O. Swatsek, 2011-06 Throughout history many dictators developed a primeval almost sadistic view of society and felt that power was for the taking Some of these dictators went to the finest educators in the world and learned how to mesmerize their citizens converting them to their own twisted ideologies They began the process by corrupting the military generals who controlled the work force and weapons that could control their people One individual during World War Two set in motion a contingency plan in the event he wasn't successful in accomplishing his goal of ruling the world and that was Adolf Hitler Toward the end of the Second World War Hitler ordered his Army to enter Prague He moved his munitions factory to Prague's underground city because the Russians were getting too close to Berlin To temper his paranoia he created a back up plan That's when he created The Doomsday Device As such he planned an apocalypse so devastating it was beyond description and one in which the world could never recover Thirty five years later a letter surfaced reminding five people that the device could still be a real threat to the world and had to be disarmed Rick Benedict was a professor at Brown University at the time Little did he know that soon he was going to be embroiled in a world of betrayal and deceit that would shake the very foundation of his own beliefs An Intimate Deception CJ Birch, 2019-05-14
