Care, 2000 In this book Norman S Care addresses the question of what it is to be a good or decent person His discussion is centered on motivation issues rather than on the content of moral principles or the imperatives of ethical theory He argues that decent people are constrained by moral emotional nature to take certain things seriously and this is part of what it means to have a moral life The background of the discussion is the world around us The world is no extension of the affluence that shields a few of us it is instead a sea of pain and despair with only small and sometimes temporary islands of stability and prosperity Decent People Norman S. Cosmopolitanism Versus Non-Cosmopolitanism Gillian Brock,2013-07-11 This volume demonstrates that the debate between cosmopolitans and non cosmopolitans has become increasingly sophisticated It advances the discussion on many of the questions over which cosmopolitans and non cosmopolitans continue to disagree Reputation and Defamation Lawrence McNamara,2007-12-13 The proposition that the tort of defamation protects reputation has long been axiomatic in the law The axiom s endurance is surprising it has long been observed that the law is riddled with inconsistencies and moreover the courts and the scholarly literature have rarely discussed exactly what reputation is and how judgments about reputation are made Reputation and Defamation develops a theory of reputation and uses it to analyze evaluate and propose a revision of the law It is the first book to present a comprehensive study of what reputation is how it functions and how it is and should be protected under the law Reputation it argues is best understood in terms of the moral judgments a community makes about its members Viewed in this way it becomes apparent contrary to the legal orthodoxy that defamation law did not really aim and function to protect reputation until the early nineteenth century A revised legal framework is proposed It rethinks how and why different criteria for moral judgment should or should not be recognized when courts determine whether an attack on reputation will be actionable as defamation It is argued that the right thinking person should be associated with an inclusive liberal premise of equal moral worth and a shared commitment to moral diversity The proposed framework demands that when courts recognize values at odds with that premise then such recognition must be justified on sound and expressly stated ethical grounds That demand serves to protect reputation appropriately and effectively in an age of moral diversity Ethics in Hard Times Arthur Kaplan,2012-12-06 There is widespread agreement among large segments of western society that we are living in a period of hard times At first glance such a belief might seem exceedingly odd After all persons in western society find themselves living in a time of unprecedented material abundance Hunger and disease evils all too familiar to the members of earlier generations although far from eradicated from modern life are plainly on the wane Persons alive today can look forward to healthier longer and more comfortable lives than those of their grand parents Nevertheless the feeling that life today is especially difficult is rampant in government in the media in popular books and in academic circles Western society is perceived in many quarters as wracked by crises of all sorts of faith of power of authority of social turmoil of declining quality in workmanship and products and of a general intellectual malaise afflicting both those on the Left and the Right A tone of crisis permeates the language of public life Editorials in major newspapers are full of dire warnings about the dangers of unbridled egoism avarice and greed and the risks and horrors of pollution overpopulation the arms race crime and indulgent lifestyles Making Peoples: A History of the New Zealanders From Polynesian James Belich,2007-05-07 A new paperback reprint of this best selling and ground breaking history When first published in 1996

Making Peoples was hailed as redefining New Zealand history It was undoubtedly the most important work of New Zealand history since Keith Sinclair's classic A History of New Zealand Making Peoples covers the period from first settlement to the end of the nineteenth century Part one covers Polynesian background Maori settlement and pre contact history Part two looks at Maori European relations to 1900 Part three discusses Pakeha colonisation and settlement James Belich's Making Peoples is a major work which reshapes our understanding of New Zealand history challenges traditional views and debunks many myths while also recognising the value of myths as historical forces Many of its assertions are new and controversial
