Deciding To Leave The Politics Of Reti:

Deciding to Leave Artemus Ward, 2012-02-01 While much has been written on Supreme Court appointments Deciding to Leave provides the first systematic look at the process by which justices decide to retire from the bench and why this has become increasingly partisan in recent years Since 1954 generous retirement provisions and decreasing workloads have allowed justices to depart strategically when a president of their own party occupies the White House Otherwise the justices remain in their seats often past their ability to effectively participate in the work of the Court While there are benefits and drawbacks to various reform proposals Ward argues that mandatory retirement goes farthest in combating partisanship and protecting the institution of the Court Why are Employees Leaving the Federal Government?, 1990 Careers in

City Politics Timothy Bledsoe, 2010-10-12 Careers in City Politics provides an in depth view of the vital aspects of local politics access to political office individual office holder s accountability to the public the performance of councils as collective political bodies and the often high turnover of personnel Timothy Bledsoe bases his findings on the political careers of more than eight hundred city council members representing cities with large and medium populations Tracing how some officials careers unfolded over five years Bledsoe studies their reasons for seeking office and examines how successful they were in adapting to their jobs He evaluates office holders whose council careers were cut short and those whose lengthy service qualified them as careerists paying special attention to first term officials and to those who used their seats as stepping stones to higher political offices In this first of its kind study Bledsoe offers specific recommendations for restoring some of the lost vigor to local politics The Politics of Retirement in Republican China, 1911-1949 Terrill Edward

Politicians' Reading of Public Opinion and Its Biases Stefaan Walgrave, Karolin Soontjens, Julie Sevenans, 2022 Politicians care a lot about public opinion they put great effort in getting to know what the people want They almost constantly assess public opinion through a large variety of sources And although most of them define themselves as trustees in their actual day to day decision making almost all politicians behave as delegates in the sense that they hardly ever deliberately cross public opinion but act in line with it or act not at all Notwithstanding their great focus on public opinion politicians perceptions of what it is that the people want are remarkably inaccurate They not only misjudge the share of people supporting specific policies they also quite often position the majority on the wrong side of the debate Their perceptions of public opinion are not only inaccurate but most of the time biased as well Politicians perceive the public to hold more right wing positions than it actually does Together the inaccuracy and bias of politicians public opinion perceptions challenge the idea that elected representatives make representative democracy work by relying on their public opinion perceptions In Flanders in Belgium the political system this books looks at politicians do everything within their power to understand citizens preferences but they do not succeed in acting responsively because of their mistaken perceptions
