

VELLACORA'S PLANS

During the reception, Captain Vellacora presents his plans for the Arkadelphia during the current cruise. Though the ship is about to engage in shakedown operations, Star Fleet Command has assigned the Arkadelphia to monitor activities along the borders of the recently-formed Asparax Confederation, which lies between the Klingon and Federation borders.

Over the last several days, the Captain has maneuvered the Arkadelphia as close to the boundary of the Confederation as possible in order to gauge the reactions from the local systems. In each instance, a small patrol craft has appeared, warning off the Arkadelphia and displaying a less than friendly attitude. Star Fleet fears that the Asparaxians may obtain modern Klingon vessels, making them a threat to Federation commerce. The Asparaxians have already banned Federation shipping from the area of space claimed by their new government, and have announced their intention to seize any commercial vessel that strays across its borders without sufficient reason. The mission of the Arkadelphia is to maintain a close surveillance of the neighboring space and to respond to any intrusion by unknown or unfriendly vessels in the vicinity.

Just what exactly is meant by 'an unfriendly vessel', the Captain goes on to say, is a matter of policy currently being debated by the Federation Council. The Asparax Confederation has indicated that it may ally with the Klingons in return for technological assistance. Should the Asparaxians permit Klingon warships in their space, the delicate balance of power between the Klingon Empire and the Federation may shift against the UFP. Also, the proximity of the Asparax Confederation to the Rigel star systems may result in the presence of numerous Orion or 'independent' ships operating as pirates in the area. In either case, the Arkadelphia must be ready to use military force to back up Federation policy. The Captain's discretion will be limited by the Council's decisions, once they become known.

The only note of discord in an otherwise pleasant evening is an angry exchange that takes place between the Captain and the ship's Chief Medical Officer, Commander Paine, following dinner. What begins as a private conversation escalates into a heated shouting match that the rest of the guests cannot help but overhear. The substance of the quarrel concerns the Captain's presumed reluctance to comply with a medical examination at the Doctor's behest. The ship's Surgeon demands the Captain undergo a long-overdue examination first thing in the morning, in accordance with Star Fleet regulations.

For his part, Captain Vellacora insists he is concerned with more important matters at the moment, and demands that Paine wait until a more appropriate opportunity presents itself. When both men refuse to back down from their positions, the Captain ends the argument by uncharacteristically ordering the physician from the room. Commander Paine withdraws in a silence that threatens further animosity between the two officers. Following this argument, the rest of the assembled group quickly find reasons to be elsewhere.

TRAINING MANEUVERS

The following morning, the player characters assume their stations as active members of the ship's company. During the next few days, each will be expected to participate in a series of shakedown and inspection procedures to determine the Arkadelphia's effectiveness. The shakedown operations are scheduled to take one week to complete. If the crew demonstrates high efficiency and competence, however, the time may be less. At the conclusion of the testing period, the Arkadelphia is scheduled to return to Star Base 12 for further maintenance and refitting before assuming normal fleet operations.

[GAMEMASTER'S NOTE: As the player characters' service begins on the Arkadelphia, consult the Patrol Encounters Table, the Subspace Communications Table, and the Captain's Irrationality Index in the Gamemaster's Notes.]

The vessel's security capability, weapons, fire-control systems, and on-board shuttlecraft are among the ship's systems that need testing. The Arkadelphia's warp engines will be tested at full power during these trials. In addition, the ship's crew will be put through a series of tests to determine their own level of efficiency. Such operations generally take a month or more to complete. The week-long tests will nevertheless pinpoint any major design flaws or low efficiency ratings that require immediate attention.

Those player characters who find themselves serving as acting Department Heads will supervise and implement various training exercises aboard ship. In some cases, they may even be called upon to develop such exercises for their own department. In any case, each will be expected to take part in the ship-wide training maneuvers through which the Captain will put the crew in an effort to gauge their overall competency.
