still standing and mourn those that have been lost This comparative study illuminates contrasts between the white collar New Deal capital and the blue collar industrial port city while noting such striking commonalities as the regional patterns of Baltimore's John Jacob Zinc who designed Art Deco cinemas in both cities Uneven preservation efforts have allowed significant losses but surviving examples of Art Deco architecture include the Bank of America building in Baltimore now better known as 10 Light Street and the Uptown Theater on Connecticut Avenue NW in Washington Although possibly less glamorous or flamboyant than exemplars in New York or Miami the authors find these structures along with apartment houses and government buildings typical of the Deco architecture found throughout the United States and well worth preserving Demonstrating how an international design movement found its way into ordinary places this study will appeal to architectural historians as well as regional residents interested in developing a greater appreciation of Art Deco architecture in the mid Atlantic region

rise to prominence and its eventual decline in relation to New York's dominance in the 1960s. Originally sparked by a series of lectures Albright gave at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art in 1974, the book offers a rich narrative that blends personal insight with rigorous research. Albright, a longtime art critic for the San Francisco Chronicle, brings his extensive experience and insider perspective to the task of documenting a previously unexamined period in American art history. The book's beautifully illustrated pages not only capture the artistic essence of the region but also shine a light on the creative figures and movements that shaped the Bay Area's distinctive artistic voice. This invaluable volume serves as both a historical record and an engaging guide for anyone interested in the evolution of modern art in the San Francisco Bay Area. Rivera's work in Mexico and the United States from the early 1920s through the mid 1940s. During this time in his prolific career Rivera created a new vision for the Americas on both national and continental levels informed by his time in both countries. Rivera's murals in Mexico and the U.S. serve as points of departure for a critical and contemporary understanding of one of the most aesthetically, socially, and politically ambitious artists of the twentieth century. Works featured include the greatest number of paintings and drawings from this period reunited since the artist's lifetime presented alongside fresco panels and mural sketches. This catalogue serves as a guide to two crucial decades in Rivera's career illuminating his most important themes from traditional markets to modern industry and devoting attention to iconic paintings as well as works that will be new even to scholars revealing fresh insights into his artistic process.
