Michael Leja traces the beginnings of a transformation in cultural life in the United States when the widespread circulation of pictures reshaped a culture accustomed to printed and spoken words In the three decades before the Civil War the ordinary experiences of a large segment of the population came to include pictures of many kinds including illustrations in books pamphlets and newspapers photographs on cards full sheet printed pictures collected in scrapbooks or albums or hung on walls posters and broadsheets spectacular paintings displayed in theatrical venues and more Pictures supplemented verbal texts and in some cases overshadowed them for conveying news and information portraying people places and events focusing public discourse selling things educating and instructing generating excitement and aesthetic gratification promoting and disguising political agendas shaping social identities and building and undermining social bonds A Flood of Pictures recovers a time before successful pictorial formulas for mass appeal were established before an audience habituated to consumption of pictures existed and before pictures had become thoroughly commodified Through its exploration of these nineteenth century developments the book reveals the foundations of our picture saturated twenty first century
