The Royal Women Who Made England M J Porter,2024-04-18 Read all about the royal women who were powerful in their own right as well as through their husbands sons and grandsons Throughout the tenth century England as it would be recognized today formed No longer many Saxon kingdoms but rather just England Yet this development masks much in the century in which the Viking raiders were seemingly driven from England s shores by Alfred his children and grandchildren only to return during the reign of his great great grandson the much maligned thelred II Not one but two kings would be murdered others would die at a young age and a child would be named king on four occasions Two kings would never marry and a third would be forcefully divorced from his wife Yet the development towards England did not stop At no point did it truly fracture back into its constituent parts Who then ensured this stability To whom did the witan turn when kings died and children were raised to the kingship The royal woman of the House of Wessex came into prominence during the century perhaps the most well known being thelfl d daughter of King Alfred Perhaps the most maligned being lfthryth Elfrida accused of murdering her stepson to clear the path to the kingdom for her son thelred II but there were many more women rich and powerful in their own right where their names and landholdings can be traced in the scant historical record Using contemporary source material The Royal Women Who Made England can be plucked from the obscurity that has seen their names and deeds lost even within a generation of their own lives

Gender, Nation and Conquest in the Works of William of Malmesbury Kirsten A. Fenton,2008 A fresh new approach to the works of William of Malmesbury looking in particular at his presentation of men and women William of Malmesbury is one of the most important English historians of the twelfth century not only a critical period in English history but also one that has been recognised as significant in terms of the writing of historyand the construction of a national past This innovative study provides a gendered reading of Malmesbury s works with special reference to the themes of conquest and nation It considers Malmesbury s presentation of men andwomen both lay and religious through categories based on attributes such as sexual behaviour and violence rather than the more familiar professional or familial roles such as warrior and wife It is also concerned with language and how the topics of conquest and nation are discussed in gendered terms Importantly attention is paid to Malmesbury s own position as a post conquest chronicler writing at a time of church reform and to the impact the changes had upon the construction of the stories he narrates KIRSTEN A FENTON holds a Leverhulme Early Career Fellowship at the University of Edinburgh
