Art in Great Britain and Ireland Walter Armstrong, 2015-06-24 Excerpt from Art in Great Britain and Ireland The history of art in the British Isles which still remains to be written will be the history of a frequently arrested and frequently diverted development The remains which have come down to us contradict the assumption too often made that the unequally mixed race inhabiting England Scotland and Ireland is essentially inartistic and that if left to itself it would have produced little or nothing with which the historian of art need have been greatly concerned It is true that the Celtic and Latin elements in our population deserve the credit of most that is good in our aesthetic production but after all those Celtic and Latin elements are an integral part of our race and we have as much right to take pride in their achievements as in the political virtues which may perhaps spring chiefly from the Teutonic strain in our blood About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Art of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland & the Republic of Ireland in 20th-21st Centuries and Polish-British & Irish Art Relations Geron Małgorzata, Malinowski Jerzy, Sienkiewicz Jan Wiktor, 2015 Art of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland the Republic of Ireland in 20th 21st Centuries and Polish British Irish Art Relations is the fifth volume of Studies on Modern Art and a first book of this kind in Poland The volume presents research on British and Irish art conducted mainly by Polish scholars So far the research on British art in the 20th century in comparison to the research on modern French German Russian Italian and American art has been taken up only sporadically The greatest number of Polish publications have concerned post war British art while there is almost no publication devoted to interwar art No research on Irish art has been conducted so far Thus the studies on modern Irish art seem to be an important novelty The widest range of previous interests has concerned the art of the Polish emigration circle since World War II Like Polish artistic colonies in Rome in the 19th century in Munich in the second half of the 19th century and in Paris since the late 19th century the Polish emigration colony in London with numerous organizations galleries and magazines has drawn attention as an important element of Polish art and Polish artistic tradition Particular attention should be paid to a group of studies devoted to works by Jewish artists or artists of Jewish origin from Poland The volume is divided into Introduction and 6 sections 1 Polish British Art Relations before 1945 2 Contemporary British Art 3 Polish migr Art in Great Britain after 1945 4 Contemporary Polish British Art Relations 5 Irish Art 6 British Art and the World Thus a certain image of British art of the 20th century is outlined as seen from afar The book is structured chronologically with focus on selected issues Subsequent parts present phenomena
