1971 Darby English, 2016-12-20 In this book art historian Darby English explores the year 1971 when two exhibitions opened that brought modernist painting and sculpture into the burning heart of United States cultural politics

Contemporary Black Artists in America at the Whitney Museum of American Art and The DeLuxe Show a racially integrated abstract art exhibition presented in a renovated movie theater in a Houston ghetto 1971 A Year in the Life of Color looks at many black artists desire to gain freedom from overt racial representation as well as their efforts and those of their advocates to further that aim through public exhibition Amid calls to define a black aesthetic these experiments with modernist art prioritized cultural interaction and instability Contemporary Black Artists in America highlighted abstraction as a stance against normative approaches while The DeLuxe Show positioned abstraction in a center of urban blight The importance of these experiments English argues came partly from color s special status as a cultural symbol and partly from investigations of color already under way in late modern art and criticism With their supporters black modernists among them Peter Bradley Frederick Eversley Alvin Loving Raymond Saunders and Alma Thomas rose above the demand to represent or be represented compromising nothing in their appeals for interracial collaboration and above all responding with optimism rather than cynicism to the surrounding culture s preoccupation with color

The Black Curator Kemuel Benyehudah, 2025-06-20 The Black Curator highlights the role that Black curators have long played in advocating for black artists and social changes and argues that they made a significant contribution to the democratization of museums over the last 150 years Drawing on oral testimonies and archival research this book examines how black curatorial activist practices emerged as a social and imaginative response to racism across various museum contexts Exploring the work of black curators at three different museums Benyehudah traces a lineage from black curators in the 19th century to those currently working in curatorial roles Analysis of these case studies and the use of ideas from museum studies critical race theory and art history also enable the author to demonstrate how black curatorial practice was and is distinct from Eurocentric forms of curating black art Explaining that the black curatorial lens was used in the process of establishing counter archives the author also demonstrates that it has played and continues to play a vital role in the decolonization of museums Offering compelling ways to look at the relationship between black curators and legacies of colonialism in museums The Black Curator will be essential reading for scholars students and museum practitioners
