Rosenband, 2003-05-22. Eight years before the French Revolution, the paper mill at Vidalon le Haut was the setting for a bitter strike and successful lockout. This labor dispute, resulting from conflicts between master papermakers and skilled journeymen, ultimately benefitted the mill's owners.

and administrators the Montgolfier family They converted the 1781 lockout into an opportunity to train a new kind of worker a malleable employee and to fashion a new sort of workplace a theater of technological experiment Papermaking in Eighteenth Century France Management Labor and Revolution at the Montgolfier Mill 1761 1805 gives us history from the workshop up offering the most comprehensive exploration available of the historical experience of papermaking Leonard N Rosenband explains how paper was made depicting the tools techniques raw materials and seasonable flows of the craft and explores the many conflicts and compromises between masters and men Rosenband provides a compelling account of how technological change affected the papermaking industry transforming an elaborate established system of production The Montgolfier archives are a rich source of information providing records of daily output and procedures including complex rules ranging from the precise hours of meals and prayer to matters of propriety and personal sanitation They also provide insight into the attitudes of the Montgolfier family and their workers what they made of their trade their labor and one another This case study of the Montgolfier mill adding details about technological innovation and shopfloor relations during a time of social unrest enriches the current debate about the nature and impact of capitalism in France during the years leading up to the French Revolution The Art of Paper-Making Alexander Watt,2017-10-16 In the present volume while describing the various operations involved in the manufacture of paper the Author has endeavoured to render the work serviceable as a book of reference in respect to the processes and improvements which have from time to time been introduced and many of which have been more or less practically applied either at home or abroad The recovery of soda from waste liquors has been fully dealt with and the details of several applied processes explained Special attention has also been directed to some of the more important methods of producing pulp from wood fibre since it is highly probable that from this inexhaustible source the paper maker will ultimately derive much of the cellulose used in his manufacture Indeed it may be deemed equally probable when the processes for disintegrating wood fibre so largely applied in America and on the Continent become better understood in this country that their adoption here will become more extensive than has hitherto been the case vi To render the work more readily understood alike by the practical operator and the student care has been taken to avoid as far as possible the introduction of unexplained technicalities at the same time it has been the writer s aim to furnish the reader with a variety of information which it is hoped will prove both useful and instructive It is with much pleasure that the Author tenders his sincere thanks to Mr Sydney Spalding of the Horton Kirby Mills South Darenth for his kind courtesy in conducting him through the various departments of the mill and for explaining to him the operations performed therein To Mr Frank Lloyd he also acknowledges his indebtedness for the generous readiness with which he accompanied him over the Daily Chronicle Mill at Sittingbourne and for the pains he took to supply information as to certain details at the Author s request His best thanks are also due to those manufacturers of paper making machinery who supplied him with many of the blocks which illustrate the pages of the book
