Indo-Aryan Uta Reinöhl, 2016 This book examines historical changes in the grammar of the Indo Aryan languages from the period of their earliest attestations in Vedic Sanskrit around 1000 bc to contemporary Hindi Uta Reinöhl focuses specifically on the rise of configurational structure as a by product of the grammaticalization of postpositions while Vedic Sanskrit lacks function words that constrain nominal expressions into phrasal units one of the characteristics of an non configurational language New Indo Aryan languages have postpositions which organize nominal expressions into postpositional phrases The grammaticalization of postpositions and the concomitant syntactic changes are traced through the three millennia of Indo Aryan attested history with a focus on Vedic Sanskrit Middle Indic Pali and Apabhramsha Early New Indic Old Awadhi and finally Hindi Among the topics discussed are the constructions in which the postpositions grammaticalize the origins of the postpositional template and the paradigmaticization of the various elements involved into a single functional class of postpositions The book outlines how it is semantic and pragmatic changes that induce changes on the expression side ultimately resulting in the establishment of phrasal and thus low level configurational syntax Journal of the Pali Text Society, 1893 Early Buddhist Art of China and Central Asia, Volume 3 Marylin M. Marylin Martin Rhie, 2010-06-14 This book third in a series on the early Buddhist art of China and Central Asia centers on Buddhist art from the Western Ch'in 385-431 A.D. in eastern Kansu northwest China primarily from the cave temples of Pingling ssu and Mai chi shan. A detailed chronological and iconographic study of sculptures and wall paintings in Cave 169 at Pingling ssu particularly yields a chronological framework for unlocking the difficult issues of dating early fifth century Chinese Buddhist art and offers some new insights into textual sources in the Lotus Hua yen and Amitabha sutras. Further this study introduces the iconography of the five Buddhas and its relation to the art of Gandhara and the famous five colossal T'an yao caves at Yün kang. Significance and Importance of Jatakas Gokuldas De, 1951 Spreading the Dhamma Daniel Veidlinger, 2006-08-31 How did early Buddhists actually encounter the seminal texts of their religion? What were the attitudes held by monks and laypeople toward the written and oral Pali traditions? In this pioneering work Daniel Veidlinger explores these questions in the context of the northern Thai kingdom of Lan Na. Drawing on a vast array of sources including indigenous chronicles, reports by foreign visitors, inscriptions, and palm leaf manuscripts, he traces the role of written Buddhist texts in the predominantly oral milieu of northern Thailand from the fifteenth to the nineteenth centuries. Veidlinger examines how the written word was assimilated into existing Buddhist and monastic practice in the region, considering the use of manuscripts for textual study and recitation as well as the place of writing in the cultic and ritual life of the faithful. He shows how manuscripts fit into the economy, describes how they were made and stored, and highlights the understudied issue of the cult of the book in Theravada Buddhism. Looking at the wider Theravada world, Veidlinger argues that manuscripts in Burma and Sri Lanka played a more central role in the preservation and dissemination of Buddhist texts. By offering a detailed examination of the motivations driving those who sponsored manuscript production, this study draws attention to the vital role played by forest-dwelling monastic orders introduced from Sri Lanka in the development of Lan Na's written Pali heritage. It also considers the rivalry between those monks who wished to preserve the older oral tradition and monks, rulers, and laypeople who supported the expansion of the new medium of writing. Publications Pali Text Society, 1896
