Francisco Salzillo Enrique Pardo Canalís, 1983 Estudio sobre la vida y obra del escultor Francisco Salzillo Escultura Johann Gottfried Herder, 2011-11-28 Situat en la cruïlla de la Il·lustració i el Romanticisme el pensament de Herder essencialment crític i intempestiu té una complexitat que no pot reduir-se a les derives irracionalistes que poc tenien a veure amb el veritable sentit de les seues idees Aquestes reflexions sobre l'estètica a partir de l'escultura permeten aproximar-se al pensament d'un humanista radical The Spiritual Rococo Gauvin Alexander Bailey, 2017-07-05 A groundbreaking approach to Rococo religious art and spirituality in Europe and South America The Spiritual Rococo addresses three basic conundrums that impede our understanding of eighteenth century aesthetics and culture Why did the Rococo ostensibly the least spiritual style in the pre-Modern canon transform into one of the world's most important modes for adorning sacred spaces And why is Rococo still treated as a decadent nemesis of the Enlightenment when the two had fundamental characteristics in common This book seeks to answer these questions by treating Rococo as a global phenomenon for the first time and by exploring its moral and spiritual dimensions through the lens of populist French religious literature of the day a body of work the author calls the Spiritual Rococo and which has never been applied directly to the arts The book traces Rococo's development from France through Central Europe Portugal Brazil and South America by following a chain of interlocking case studies whether artistic literary or ideological and it also considers the parallel diffusion of the literature of the Spiritual Rococo in these same regions placing particular emphasis on unpublished primary sources such as inventories One of the ultimate goals of this study is to move beyond the cliché of Rococo's frivolity and acknowledge its essential modernity Thoroughly interdisciplinary The Spiritual Rococo not only integrates different art historical fields in novel ways but also interacts with church and social history literary and post colonial studies and anthropology opening up new horizons in these fields

Educación Plástica , Relaciones formales entre la escultura primitiva y el arte popular en Ávila Elena GONZÁLEZ SÁNCHEZ, 2012-06-01 The universal and timeless nature of the shape and its duration over time together with the popular design offers a new approach to the identity and sense of the human being all of which has been put forward in this thesis from the particular point of view of the city of Avila The language of the shape the sculpture shows itself as an innate and necessary creative process for our nature Sculpture can stay throughout time as witness and connection among people beyond time and space This is the bottom line of this thesis that starts from a specific place Avila offering some conclusions with universal effects as it proposes a journey to the feeling emotion and reason from the thoughtful meditation that arises with the necessity for the universal creative process I have chosen two marginal moments with regard to the traditional artistic conception officially accepted since this may enable us to come closer to the essence of concepts such as identity survival and creation We are talking about the original primitivism that starts in the ancient times with the first plastic movements of the human being until the integration of the culture developed in these territories into a wider and more guided context of the roman culture As an artistic discipline sculpture allows a different view from the scientific one Sculpture enables to study elements of remarkable artistic value by its beauty concreteness poetry expressiveness of the shape the purpose and materialization of fate Aspects that change visibly insipid objects beyond its historical and testimonial value into sources of contemplation knowledge and artistic enjoyment that exceed even the initial functional validity in those cases in which they existed We are talking about the vitality that we perceive out of its mere presence as artistic elements We are conditioned by our own cultural attitude when we look at an object We are heirs of the classicism but also of an identity less recognized and transmitted among others by manifestations like the popular art that arose with the first artistic manifestations and that has been continued until today It is therefore the most extended artistic style in any culture whose creative essence has maintained the same ancient and primitive sense which step by step we have forgotten and which we have resumed in light of the contemporaneity Three topic paths lead us to study the topic in depth until the final conclusions Techniques and materials subject matters and formal aspects In all of them we can study the inner essence in depth which is common either to the primitive and to the popular as a result of the particular human relations of both moments with reference to the natural surrounding and also to the socio economic arena which is characterized by a self sufficient economy

According to the cultural aspect the unusual acquisition of materials and elements that we can call exotic will provide decorative and symbolic prominence as compared with the more useful work conditioned by the feasibility of materials and a greater development of its own techniques. These materials are also influenced by a common subject matter which came to produce formal characteristic results which were passed on from generation to generation and were sought by the author in each new creation. The easiness of techniques like incision or engraving as well as the simplicity and force of some shapes give a faster and deepest assimilation into the formal unconscious. These characteristics determine a formal conception that flows freely between the abstraction and representational art without achieving high levels of realism and which in some occasions become more prominent in their relations with the materials proposed by conceptions and movements of great plastic vitality of the twentieth century. The concept and the subject matter merge completely to develop a more or less complicated game of various iconic interpretations depending on the case. The vitality of the shape changes over time with each new look and eventually can cause confusion and impoverishment by the loss of original models. The subject matter assumes the suitability of the shape to its utility either in connection with the functionality of everyday's life or with the most intangible aspects of the existence from the author's artistic personality and by extension of the community in which he lives in the same way as we are creating today. From a deeper analysis we can infer the various values and elements in which authors from different times and places converge above the conscious level. This idea formulates some very interesting and not so well known human relations whose testimony lasts throughout the popular art. We are talking about an artistic manifestation that was born from the beginning of time which brings together concepts and subject matters despite the distortion already mentioned due to the loss or transformation of the original code. This isn't the case with the design of shapes and drawings which have been passing on in a quite pure formal state despite the modifications of the individual making or the adaptation according to the moment and its circumstances. A fundamental event is presence of a milestone elements that will be even adopted to transcend the very best expression as recognized symbols as well as timeless stimulus though materialized under different advocations. It could be claimed that although the popular art is quite faithful to the shape and design it is by far more faithful to his inner essence which explains the persistence in the same personality through pieces with different stages of a process of becoming baroque. We can conclude by telling that our creative experience is universal but we need to return to the origins of our current formulations in order to return to our own human nature to understand our creative needs to appreciate the artistic values and the importance of the creative fact giving strength to the knowledge and thereby growing as a particular and global community.
