Buddhism And Interfaith Dialogue:

Buddhism and Interfaith Dialogue Masao Abe, 2016-07-27 This book tries to clarify a Buddhist view of interfaith dialogue from various points of view. It discusses how the Buddhist notion of Sunyata Emptiness works dynamically for mutual understanding and transformation of world religions. It also analyzes dialogue between Buddhism and Contemporary Christian theology especially that of Paul Tillich and Langdon Gillay.

Buddhism and Interfaith Dialogue Masao Abe, 1995-08-06 This book tries to clarify a Buddhist view of interfaith dialogue from various points of view. It also analyzes dialogue between Buddhism and Contemporary Christian theology especially that of Paul Tillich and Langdon Gillay.

Buddhist-Christian Dialogue Paul O. Ingram, Frederick J. Streng, 2007-04-01 The essays in this volume focus on philosophical, theological, and structural aspects of contemporary Buddhist-Christian dialogue in an effort to assess its potential as a source for the renewal and transformation of both traditions. Writing from differing assumptions, academic disciplines, and religious world views, the nine Christian and two Buddhist contributors are nevertheless agreed that interreligious dialogue can contribute meaningfully to our understanding of some of the profound issues arising out of modern self-consciousness. Believing that the human community and its survival are threatened everywhere by secularism, they seek to show that the dialogue between Buddhists and Christians can provide not only insights but a conceptual framework for authentic living in the present age of religious pluralism. Each writer shares the conclusion that Buddhist-Christian encounter is vitally important for a larger understanding of contemporary issues of self-identity, evil, communication, and fulfillment.

Buddhist-Christian Dialogue as Theological Exchange Ernest M. Valea, 2015-04-14 This book is intended to encourage the use of comparative theology in contemporary Buddhist-Christian dialogue as a new approach that would truly respect each religious tradition's uniqueness and make dialogue beneficial for all participants interested in a real theological exchange. As a result of the impasse reached by the current theologies of religious exclusivism, inclusivism, and pluralism in formulating a constructive approach in dialogue, this volume assesses the thought of the founding fathers of an academic Buddhist-Christian dialogue in search of clues that would encourage a comparativist approach. These founding fathers are considered to be three important representatives of the Kyoto School: Kitaro Nishida, Keiji Nishitani, and Masao Abe, and John Cobb, an American process theologian. The guiding line for assessing their views of dialogue is the concept of human perfection as it is expressed by the original traditions in Mahayana Buddhism and Orthodox Christianity. Following Abe's methodology in dialogue, an Orthodox contribution to comparative theology proposes a reciprocal enrichment of traditions not by syncretistic means but by providing a better understanding and even correction of one's own tradition when considering it in the light of the other while using internal resources for making the necessary corrections.

Christianity and Buddhism Whalen Lai, Michael von Brück, 2001 In Christianity and Buddhism, Whalen Lai and Michael von Brück bring together for scholars students and interested lay observers the developments and understandings reached in Christian Buddhist dialogue in six key regions of the world After a two generations long exploration by scholars and devotees the authors judge it opportune to furnish a bird s eye view of the terrain that dialogue has covered Lai and von Bruck explore questions such as what is meant by a theism and God talk in the two traditions asking whether the dialogue has revealed irreconcilable opposition or areas where each side can profit from insights from the other They acknowledge that similarities of language in the two traditions can mask differences in substance while differences in language can mask agreements in substance and it is not always clear which is the case While a first generation dialoguer Joseph Kitagawa once noted that mutual monologue was a better description of the Christian Buddhist project than dialogue Lai and von Bruck point to areas of important dynamic understanding and clarification of where dialogue needs to go to address disagreements as well

Buddhism and Interfaith Dialogue Masao Abe,2014-01-14 This book tries to clarify a Buddhist view of interfaith dialogue from various points of view It discusses how the Buddhist notion of Sunyata Emptiness works dynamically for mutual understanding and transformation of world religions It also analyzes dialogue between Buddhism and Contemporary Christian theology especially that of Paul Tillich and Langdon Gillay The Sound of Liberating Truth Sallie B. King,Paul O. Ingram,2006-06-01 This book contains a collection of dialogues written in honor of the late Frederick J Streng the former President of the Society for Buddhist Christian Studies by well known Buddhist and Christian scholars on subjects that were of primary interest to Streng A group of outstanding scholars and dialoguers have written essays from a Buddhist or a Christian point of view on a subject in which they are established scholars subjects including inter religious dialogue ultimate reality nature and ecology social engagement and ultimate transformation or soteriology Questions examined by the authors include What is the role of religious practice in interreligious dialogue How does each faith s present historical situatedness affect its priorities in dialogue In what way do the metaphysical beliefs of Buddhism and Christianity affect their behavior on ecological and social issues Are their fundamental incompatibilities or incommensurables between the two faiths Are the personal God of Christianity and the emptiness of Buddhism simply diametrically opposed What can Christianity learn from Buddhism and Buddhism from Christianity The book reflects real dialogue and not simply side by side presentations from two points of view in that each author responds to the statements of his or her dialogical partner The dialogical aspect is further strengthened by the contributions of two senior scholars one Buddhist and one Christian who reflect upon perspectives in the Epilogue The contributors to the volume are David W Chappell John B Cobb Jr Paula M Cooley Malcolm David Eckel Ruben L F Habito Thomas P Kasulis John P Keenan Sallie B King Winston L King Alan Sponberg Bonnie Thurston and Taitetsu Unno

Buddhist-Christian Dual Belonging Gavin D'Costa,Ross Thompson,2017-05-15 A growing number of people describe themselves as both Buddhist and Christian but does such a self description really make sense Many people involved in inter faith dialogue argue that this dialogue leads to a mutually transformative process but what if the transformation reaches the point where the Buddhist or Christian becomes a Buddhist Christian Does this represent a fulfilment of or the undermining of dialogue Exploring the growing phenomenon of Buddhist Christian dual belonging a wide variety of authors including advocates sympathisers and opponents from both faiths focus on three key questions Can Christian and Buddhist accounts and practices of salvation or liberation be reconciled Are Christian theism and Buddhist non theism compatible And does dual belonging inevitably distort the essence of these faiths or merely change its cultural expression Clarifying different ways of justifying dual belonging contributors offer criticisms of dual belonging from different religious perspectives Theravada Buddhist Evangelical Reformed and Roman Catholic and from different methodological approaches Four chapters then carry the discussion forward suggesting ways in which dual belonging might make sense from Catholic Theravada Buddhist Pure land Buddhist and Anglican perspectives The conclusion clarifies the main challenges emerging for dual believers and the implications for interreligious dialogue

The Process of Buddhist-Christian Dialogue Paul O Ingram, 2011-09-29 While process philosophers and theologians have written numerous essays on Buddhist Christian dialogue few have sought to expand the current Buddhist Christian dialogue into a trilogy by bringing the natural sciences into the discussion as a third partner This was the topic of Paul O Ingram's previous book Buddhist Christian Dialogue in an Age of Science The thesis of the present work is that Buddhist Christian dialogue in all three of its forms conceptual social engagement and interior are interdependent processes of creative transformation Ingram appropriates the categories of Whitehead's process metaphysics as a means of clarifying how dialogue is now mutually and creatively transforming both Buddhism and Christianity Drawing also on the work of theologian John Hicks and philosopher of science Imre Lakatos Ingram develops an understanding of Buddhist Christian dialogue in the context of a religious pluralism that is both open and dynamic and methodologically rigorous Wide ranging and full of insight The Process of Buddhist Christian Dialogue will be invaluable to scholars and students of comparative religion

Meaning, Consensus, and Dialogue in Buddhist-Christian Communication John D'Arcy May, 1984 There is no lack of phenomenological literature on both Buddhism and Christianity nor of theological literature on the dialogue between them There is need however of a theory of communication between such communities of belief Analyses of Buddhist and Christian canonical texts reveal the linguistic patterns underlying the construction of meaning in the earliest communities a theory of consensus formation provides a broader framework for understanding the development and interaction of social meaning systems and in this framework the problems posed by Buddhist Christian communication are formulated and analysed
