Building Better Public Services Tony Dean, 2015-08-12 For decades public service organizations have been under constant and growing pressure from citizens and stakeholders to provide more integrated effective and accountable programs and services Governments are beginning to acknowledge that they can't own every issue and increasingly look to collaboration networking and consultation at many levels as they design and develop policies programs and service delivery mechanisms Building Better Public Services explores the challenges facing public services in the 21st century including the need for systemic cultural change enhanced governance evidence informed policy and program design and shared approaches to service delivery Based on case studies and interviews supplemented by first person experience Building Better Public Services will take you inside the world of public services in Canada and the United Kingdom to explore capacity building successes and lessons learned The book offers insights into innovations that will inform public servants as they work to improve services for citizens and gives directional advice and observations on the importance of public services leadership an area rarely explored in business leadership literature An essential handbook on how to improve public policy and services This is not yet another book focused primarily on making government smaller or driven by an ideology of austerity It is rather grounded in a deep appreciation of the importance of public service to our quality of life and well being and of the great advantages Canada's professional nonpartisan public service affords Drawing on examples across Canada and internationally of what works and what does not Tony offers concrete recommendations for building a more citizen centred open collaborative public service Alex Himelfarb Former Clerk of the Privy Council Government of Canada and current Chair of WWF Canada and the Canadian Alliance to End Homelessness I hope Tony Dean's reflections bring a long overdue debate to a critical subject how to make public services work better Innovation in the public sector is a subject that cries out for real discussion and Tony has done us all a great favour by analysing these issues with commitment and flair It's not about cutting things it's about creativity and getting things done breaking down silos and making it happen Bob Rae Lawyer negotiator and Ontario's 21st Premier This is a book written by someone who knows the day to day challenges and reality of making governments work It should be read by both current and future politicians and public servants who want to improve their governments focus on outcomes for and with citizens Dean underpins this book with relentlessly wanting to achieve more He celebrates the passion commitment and innovation of public servants but is not blind to the need for change

Investment for Health System Resilience Feng Zhao,Rialda Kovacevic,David Bishai,Jeff Weintraub,2024-08-23 As efforts to build emergency ready health systems intensify across the globe Strategic Investment for Health System Resilience A Three Layer Framework provides a practical investment framework and a diverse set of country cases to inform decision making and strategic resource allocations The framework includes layer 1 risk reduction promoting emergency ready primary health care public health prevention and community preparedness layer 2 detection containment and mitigation capabilities and layer 3 advanced case management and surge response This three layer framework prioritizes interventions that prevent a public health threat from developing in the first place layer 1 limit its spread should one emerge layer 2 and manage a widespread crisis that compromises a health system s ability to deliver care sustainably layer 3 All three layers play a role in achieving health system resilience but not all of them have been leveraged equally in the past Strategic Investment for Health System Resilience offers a glimpse of the relatively low cost of investments in improving the operation of the weakest parts of the three layers Layer 1 functions are estimated to cost between US 2 per capita in low income countries and US 4 per capita in lower middle income countries The framework applies equally to short term epidemics of communicable diseases and to slow moving trends in noncommunicable diseases The pace of the needed response to health threats can vary but all require a system that is resilient across multiple layers of response Although there is no universal blueprint for every setting it behooves all countries to seize the moment and invest in the three layers in ways that fit their needs Building Better - Less - Different: Clean Energy Transition and Digital Transformation Felix Heisel,Dirk E.

Hebel,2023-11-06 Sustainability Sustainability is to become the guiding principle of social action and economic activity At the same time its ways and means are far from clear As a holistic praxis sustainability must combine technical and material as well as social economic ecological and also ethical strategies which have multiple complex interactions and all too often also conflicting goals and priorities In no other field can these be better observed addressed and influenced than in architecture and building Building Better Less Different Each volume of Building Better Less Different details two fundamental areas of sustainability and explores their specific dynamics and interactions After introductory overviews innovative methods and current developments are described and analysed in in depth essays international case studies and pointed commentaries The sustainability criteria of efficiency better sufficiency less and consistency different form the framework for each book What the press say about the first volume Circular Construction and Circular Economy The articles case studies and commentaries in this book make a major contribution to advancing the current discourse on implementing circular based economic models in the building sector Hessian Chamber of Architects book reviews To think of tomorrow when building today is the core message that Dirk E Hebel and Felix Heisel want to convey to their readers And they also show us how with the help of relevant examples grouped under the headings better less and different they demonstrate concrete applications and argue that circular construction can also benefit the construction industry architektur aktuell Clean energy transition It has long been common knowledge that energy and sustainability are closely interlinked And yet we are witnessing a profound shift in the sector While the earlier focus was on improving energy efficiency and increasing the proportion of renewable energy in buildings current energy conservation policies are supporting a broader more holistic view This encompasses integral approaches in which building design and construction measures form part of the energy concept from the outset as well as accounting for grey energy in building materials and a holistic evaluation of buildings over their entire life cycle For the energy intensive and emission producing building sector climate change presents an even greater challenge than conserving resources How can we contribute to a shift in heating strategies and employ new technologies to achieve climate neutral heating How can we respond to rising temperatures and the risk of increased energy consumption for cooling Can low tech concepts help to reduce the environmental impact of buildings over their life cycle Shouldn t we take greater account of the users of buildings and do we need completely different energy supply strategies Digital Transformation At a time of natural ubiquity of digital tools widely adopted to streamline project delivery in architecture the foundations have been laid for a profound transformation of the construction industry to address the climate crisis Digital architectural design and construction methods can be used as enabling technologies for a fundamental change towards a circular construction approach with significantly reduced ecological and climate impact This approach comprises a digital reinterpretation of natural building materials through digital construction technologies Digital deconstruction and reuse strategies can transform the existing building stock into resources for the future Mass customization of tailor made building components minimizes resource consumption Architects in their emerging role as interdisciplinary interface and digital master builders reunite design and making through digital craft Finally the book provides a glimpse into the potential future of construction which might be characterized by fundamentally different concepts of design and materialization of our built environment challenging current paradigms within our discipline Water and Development Ronaldo Munck,Narathius Asingwire,Honor Fagan,Consolata Kabonesa,2015-09-15 Water has always been a crucial catalyst for human development In Africa competition among different sectors for this scarce resource remains a critical challenge to water managers and decision makers Water and Development examines a range of issues from governance to solar distillation from gender to water pumps using a range of research methods from participant observation to GIS and SPSS data analysis Throughout however there is the unifying thread of developing a participatory and sustainable approach to water which recognises it as an essential public necessity The result is essential reading both for students of development and the environment and for NGOs and policy makers seeking a robust and transformational approach to water and development

Flood Early Warning Systems Daniela Molinari, Scira Menoni, Francesco Ballio, 2013 Presenting the results of an ambitious research activity this book intends to understand why Early Warning Systems EWSs fail However from the beginning the objective turned out to be challenging first because so far there is not a shared understanding of what an EWS is among both researchers and practitioners communities second as a consequence because it is equally unclear when an EWS can be considered successful or not Due to this the research needed first to face some open questions instead of going straight to the point under investigation Specifically it was first necessary to define EWS identify its components and functions peculiarities and weak points Only at that point a first attempt to evaluate EWS performance was possible Flood

Early Warning Systems Performance is organised according to the conceptual steps required by the research In part I the open questions about the definition and the role of EWSs are handled the aim being the identification of how to evaluate their effectiveness performance Part II focuses on the real aim of the research providing concepts and tools to assess EWS performance suggested tools are also implemented in a case study to describe how they can be applied in practice Focusing specifically on the topic of flood risk in mountainous regions the book can be viewed as a sort of manual for EWS designers managers and users It is organised into different independent sections which will appeal both to experts as well as those with an interest in the subject Most of results can also be exported to other hazards
