The Building of the Ship, and Other Poems (Classic Reprint) Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, 2018-04-23 Excerpt from The Building of the Ship and Other Poems Mr Longfellow's birthplace was in a sea port and his youth and early manhood were passed in intimate association with sea life In his half autobiographical reverie My Lost Youth he records something of the effect which these associations had upon his mind Afterward when living in Cambridge he was wont to spend his summers at his cottage in Nahant One after another there occurred to him poems which had their suggestion in sea scenes and in April 1849 when casting about for a convenient grouping for a volume of his uncollected poems he found that a natural one was indicated by the double title By the Fireside and By the Seaside There were hardly enough poems to make a satisfactory volume and he was dispirited by his apparent inability to write a poem of any importance He wrote in his diary No new thing to start the stagnant current Oh for some great idea to refresh me I am pondering on a continuation of Hyperion His wish as he records it reminds us of the saying of Herder a German poet when lying wearily in sickness Give me a great thought that I may quicken myself with it About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
