Art And Religion In Africa:

Art and Religion in Africa Rosalind Hackett, 1998-10-01 Africa's religious and artistic traditions constitute a primary example of its intellectual and cultural vitality. Artistic works play a vital role especially where oral traditions dominate in communicating ideas about the relationship between the human spiritual and natural worlds. This work is a comparative study of Africa's visual and performing arts concentrating on their geographical material and gendered diversity and focusing on the relation of these arts to African religion. The author combines ethnographic and art historical methodology but does not assume any prior knowledge of African art or African religion. The text seeks a greater understanding of the philosophical and religious aspects of African art thus challenging western perceptions of what is important in terms of artistic representation. This approach reveals the transformative capacities and multi dimensionality of African art. The work also highlights the changes brought about by Christianity, Islam and the newer religious movements in post colonial Africa.

Religion and the Arts: History and Method Diane Apostolos-Cappadona, 2017-11-06 In Religion and the Arts: History and Method Diane Apostolos-Cappadona presents an overview of the 19th century origins of this discrete field of study and its methodological journey to the present day through issues of repatriation, museum exhibitions and globalization. Apostolos-Cappadona suggests that the fluidity and flexibility of the study of religion and the arts has expanded like an umbrella since the 1970s and the understanding that art was simply a visual exegesis of texts to now support the study of material, popular and visual culture as well as gender. She also delivers a careful analysis of the evolution of thought from traditional iconographies to the transformations once scholars were influenced by response theory and challenged by globalization and technology. Religion and the Arts: History and Method offers an indispensable introduction to the questions and perspectives essential to the study of this field.

Law and Religion in Africa Pieter Coertzen, M Christiaan Green, Len Hansen, 2015-05-01 In our time the study of law and religion is emerging as a wide ranging and vital academic discipline with increasingly urgent implications for society at large. Lying at the intersection of a variety of other disciplines, law, theology, religious studies, political science, sociology and anthropology to name only the most obvious, the field of law and religion is generating a burgeoning volume of interdisciplinary and trans disciplinary research and study. The current volume is proof of this. The discussion of the relationship between law and religion as seen from a variety of perspectives in Africa underscores the critical importance of the issues involved in the everyday life of all citizens. It is accordingly vital for governments to take note of the scholarly results that are produced. We hope that this volume will contribute to this aim.

Religion, Peacebuilding, and Development in Africa Susan M. Kilonzo, Ezra Chitando, Joram Tarusarira, 2023-10-17 This Handbook explores the ways in which religion among the African people has been applied in situations of conflict and violence to contribute to sustainable peace and development. It analyzes how peacebuilding inspired and enabled by religion serves as the foundation for sustainable development in Africa while also acknowledging that religion can also be a tool of destruction and can be used to fuel violence and underdevelopment. Contributors to this volume offer theoretical discussions from existing literature as well as experiences of practitioners to deepen the readers' understanding on the role of religion and religious institutions in peacebuilding and development in Africa. The Handbook provides reflections on possible future developments as well, thereby aligning with the goals of SDG 16.

Africa's Buildings Itohan I. Osayimwese, 2025-09-23 A groundbreaking history of Africa's looted architectural heritage and a bold proposal for the repatriation of the continent's stolen cultural artifacts. Between the nineteenth century and today, colonial officials, collectors, and anthropologists dismembered African buildings and dispersed their parts to museums in Europe and the United States. Most of these artifacts were cataloged as ornamental art objects which erased their intended functions, and the removal of these objects often had catastrophic consequences for the original structures. Africa's Buildings traces the history of the collection and distribution of African architectural fragments, documenting the brutality of the colonial regimes that looted Africa's buildings and addressing the ethical questions surrounding the display of these objects. Itohan Osayimwese ranges across the whole of Africa from Egypt in the north to Zimbabwe in the south and spanning the western, central, and eastern regions of the continent. She describes how collectors employed violent means to remove elements such as columns and door panels from buildings and how these methods differentiated architectural collecting from conventional collecting. She shows how Western collectors mischaracterized building components as ornament, erasing their architectural character and concealing the evidence of their theft. Osayimwese discusses how the very act of displacing building parts like floor tiles and woven screen walls has resulted in a loss of knowledge about their original function and argues that because of these removals, scholars have yet to fully grasp the variety and character of African architecture. Richly illustrated, Africa's Buildings uncovers the vast scale of cultural displacement perpetrated by the West and proposes a new role for museums in this history, one in which they champion the repatriation of Africa's architectural heritage and restitution for African communities.
