Totalitarian Space and the Destruction of Aura Saladdin Ahmed, 2019-02-14 We live today within a system in which state and corporate power aim to render space flat transparent and uniform for only then can it be truly controlled The gaze of power and the commodity form are capable of infiltrating even the darkest of corners and often we invite them into our most private spaces We do so as a matter of convenience but also to placate ourselves and cope with the alienation inherent in our everyday lives The resulting dominant space can best be termed totalitarian It is space stripped of uniqueness deprived of the spatial aura necessary for authentic experience In Totalitarian Space and the Destruction of Aura Saladdin Ahmed sets out to help us grasp what has been lost before no trace remains He draws attention to that which we might prefer not to see but despite the bleakness of this indictment of reality the book also offers a message of hope Namely it is only once we comprehend the magnitude of the threat to our spatial experience and our own complicity in sustaining this system that we can begin to resist the totalizing forces at work

Cultural Implications of Biosemiotics Paul Copley, 2016-08-11 This is the first book to consider the major implications for culture of the new science of biosemiotics The volume is mainly aimed at an audience outside biosemiotics and semiotics in the humanities and social sciences principally who will welcome elucidation of the possible benefits to their subject area from a relatively new field The book is therefore devoted to illuminating the extent to which biosemiotics constitutes an epistemological break with modern modes of conceptualizing culture It shows biosemiotics to be a significant departure from those modes of thought that neglect to acknowledge continuity across nature modes which install culture and the vicissitudes of the polis at the centre of their deliberations The volume exposes the untenability of the culture nature division presenting a challenge to the many approaches that can only produce an understanding of culture as a realm autonomous and divorced from nature

Decolonial Environmentalisms David J. Vázquez, 2025 In Decolonial Environmentalisms David Vázquez provides material strategies for understanding how Latinx environmental thinking over the past three decades interrogates environmental harm and the ways racial capitalism the idea that racism is a structuring logic of capitalism and colonialism are embedded in some forms of mainstream environmentalism Vázquez critiques the ways that dialogues on environmental degradation have frequently ignored or minimally engaged with Latinx thought and cultural works on these issues As he points out and we frequently see now with climate change environmental damage does not affect everyone equally He argues that most ecocriticism when it does engage with Latinx work tends to draw from the same few sources again and again and often misreads their intentions Decolonial Environmentalisms considers multiple genres and forms novels films visual art and short stories created by authors from multiple ethnic communities Chicanx Puerto Rican Dominican Cuban American Peruvian and Central American into this conversation This approach makes it possible to shape a more nuanced account of how Latinxs from multiple racial class gender sexual and other identity positions think about and represent environmental ideas By doing so he asks what do Latinx environmental representations do How do they convey their imaginaries And especially how do Latinx authors and artists imagine a more just and equitable material outcome for the characters and situations they depict
